No. no, NO, FREE TRADE.

The Democratic majority in this county is now less than 500.

All honor to Pennsylvania for the glorious majority of 80,000.

Keep this in your mind: We still think Blaine will get there on time.

Slanderers to the rear! The mud batteries of the bourbons are abandoned.

The townships did the business. God made the country and man made the town.

It is astonishing how sure the London newspapers were that Cleveland would be elected.

The Democratic brethren will kindly remember that he laughs best who laughs last.

The air is full of farewells for the dying Democracy: Ta ta Tat Too to the Democratic crew.

Who will care for Grover now? Certainly not Henry Ward Beecher. He is a hopeless cripple.

Butler and St. John will surely not be obliged to endure the malarial atmosphere of the Potomac.

Fox hunting is the latest innovation in Long Island bridal festivites—a sort of break-neck start in life.

Cleveland's defeat in his own ward is proof that those who know him best have the least use for him.

The British enthusiasm for Cleveland was like the fortune of a rich relation, too remote to be solidly comfortable.

It may be observed that the Democratic roosters did not find the breezes quite as balmy as they thought they would be.

The absurd idea that the state of New York was about to attach itself to the British dominion has been effectually exploded.

The Democrats were smart. They took time by the forelock and did all their laughing before they were ordered to prepare for burial.

Solidity is an important characteristic in many respects, but a Solid South means political inertia detrimental to business prosperity.

Now then let then the country settle down to the business of behaving itself and husking corn. There has been nonsense enough for one year.

There is nothing this country enjoys quite as much as a close shave. Midget statesmen, however, should tarry in Jericho until their beards be grown.

The campaign orator has retired at last, which is one cause for thankfulness. He is now free to carry his throat in a towel and himself into oblivion.

The influence of the lead pencil is not as powerful in Presidential years as it is in the "off" campaigns. For this all ring candidates are duly thankful.

A party whose name is a stench and whose history is the record of a crime will know enough never to enter a campaign with slander and falsehood as its stock in trade.

In the matter of Blaine, Logan and America against Cleveland, Hendricks and England the great tribune of the people has given judgment for the plaintiff. There is no court of appeal.

The American eagle, perched on the topmost bough of the tree of liberty, flaps his wings and in defiant tones screams a challenge to the English free traders to put salt on his tail if they dare.

The Church and Mammon.

We copy the following comments on a timely subject from the editorial columns of the Pittsburg Dispatch:

"Some rather decided expressions as to the difference in the relative positions of labor and capital were made in the recent Episcopal Church Congress at Detroit. The Rev. Heber Newton took the lead in asserting that the extreme forms of capitalistic combination were an oppression on the people, and he was followed by others with utterances that, however true, would sound in the ears of millionaire lights of the church like the most dangerous heresy. An editorial comment advanced the idea that while the clergymen might indulge in such talk among themselves, they would not preach it in their pulpits, before their congregations of wealthy people. This has been answered by the recently chosen pastor of Grace Church, New York, which probably contains more wealth among its members than any other in the country. His first sermon told his hearers that they could not take one of the dollars beyond the grave; that they were in danger of overrating themselves because they were Crœsuses; that the duty of benevolence consisted in nothing less than helping their fellow men to the last cent in their own purses; and that their wealth greatly endangered their prospects for happy eternity.

"There is no doubt that the principles of Christianity are the strongest assertions of the rights of the poor against the aggressions of wealth that can be found. The trouble with the churches is not that the principle is not clearly asserted in the pulpit, but that the practice is not carried out in the actual conduct of the churches. They adhere abstractly to the principle that they cannot serve God and Mammon; but most of them are inclined to try by actual experiment whether they cannot perform that difficult feat. Every church in the land will assent to the proposition that the heaping up of wealth by oppression, injustice, conspiracy or cheating is a mortal sin; but nine out of ten of them will welcome to their midst the most eminent representatives of wealth obtained in just that way. The principles are indisputable; but the practice on the most favorable view of it is at least very doubtful.

"When the churches show their practical conviction of the evils of greed and the sinfulness of Mammon by refusing any association with the notorious fortunes obtained by injurious means, the common people will have more faith in the efficacy and genuineness of their belief."

They Claim Everything.

Democrats started out the evening after the election, says the New York Tribune, with the boast on their bulletins that this State had gone for Cleveland by 60,000 majority. Next day The World came down to 5,497 majority, and then to 2,320 majority. Now it is shouting "fraud," and declares that the Republicans are trying to steal the State.

Is this as true as all its other statements concerning the election? Does it base its charge of fraud on the same sort of evidence on which it based its claim for the State by 60,000? Or, will plain people think that the charge of fraud is now raised to conceal the confession that they may have lost; and certainly cannot know without the official count whether or not they have what they claimed only three days ago by an overwhelming majority? What good purpose is served, in times of great excitement, by ranting after this wild fashion?

Gould is about as well satisfied with Cleveland as was expected. That astute gentleman's politics have long been known. He stated them himself many years ago, "We were Democratic with the Democrats and Republican with the Republicans."

A Little Dull.

The following correspondence appeared in the Philadelphia Press, of Thursday, November 6. We quote it because it is worthy the serious consideration of all our readers:

Sir: The Philadelphia Record this morning, in an editorial on the tariff of 1846, says: "That it is an historical fact that the industrial interests of the country, including manufactures, agriculture and commerce, never flourished as much in any period of fifteen years as from 1846 to 1861."

The Record man must be a little dull in the history of his country. The people were satisfied with the tariff of 1863; but when Henry Clay, a thorough representative of tariff, introduced and had passed an act of reduction of 20 per cent. on the tariff of 1833, which became tariff for revenue only, what was the result? A panic followed—money could not be had for any price—business was prostrated and there was a gloomy outlook. Mr. Clay saw that if a reduction was not made the south would have been up in arms, as they threatened, with Mr. John C. Calhoun at their head. Now we come to the tariff of '42—business revived, money was plenty and the county prosperous. James K. Polk and George M. Dallas promised, if elected, they would support the tariff of '42—they both broke their promise. The tariff of '42 was revised, and became a tariff for revenue only. Our industries were closed, to a great extent—workmen out of employment and a general stagnation of business followed.

If times were as bright as the Record would make us believe between those years, why did the Government suspend specie payment in 1857? And if we are to believe the glowing account the Record gives between '46 and '57, how is it that in 835 the Government was out of debt and in 1861, when the noble old party—the poor man's party, stepped down after such a glorious history as the Record would make us believe they always possessed, how is it that they gave the Republicans a nice little Spring present on their farewell of a debt of $88,000,000 just after the glorious times the Record speaks about? We would advise the Record men to study a little history.

Prohibition in New York.

If Mr. Blaine is elected, as now seems probable, it is in spite of a Prohibitory vote cast with distinct purpose to defeat him. If he is beaten, it is by the votes of 23,000 Prohibitionists in New York State, who voted with their eyes open against the Republican leader in Maine, and with the deliberate purpose of electing a man whose life was known to them. Because they were not altogether pleased with the course which Republicans, as conscientious and as honest in zeal for the temperance cause as themselves, had deemed it their duty to pursue, these Prohibitionists deliberately strove to elect a man they knew to be utterly unworthy, and to give a victory to the party of free rum.

This was not a proper thing to do. It was a clear disregard of public duty at the behest of narrow, vindictive and bigoted feeling. The greater part of these 23,000 Prohibitions were intelligent enough to know that Mr. Blaine was infinitely more worthy than Mr. Cleveland, and that his defeat was passionately desired by the liquor interest in all the States. Nevertheless they voted to defeat him and to elect Mr. Cleveland. They did this intentionally, in order to punish nineteen out of twenty temperance men in that State because these men had not been willing to do just what the one-twentieth thought they should do.

The decision by Judge Allison that betting cannot disfranchise a voter under the provisions of the Constitution, notwithstanding the act of Assembly, is probably good law, but betting on the result of elections is nevertheless demoralizing and pernicious.

The Political Situation.

The latest returns from New York indicate that Blaine has an exceedingly narrow plurality of under 1,000. In an aggregate vote of 1,200,000 a very few errors may change that result materially. On the returns so far the Republicans are leading and if they gain New York, they gain the national election.

On such a narrow margin the official count will be needed before the result is finally determined. While that is being made, every good citizen should unite for calmness and impartiality. The talk which is beginning to be heard from the Democrats to the effect that "We have elected our man and we will seat him any way," should be promptly and sternly suppressed. Such talk is of the most mischievous character, and contains a dangerous threat to the peace and welfare of the country. The man who, on the fair and open official count, has got the most votes is elected and must be seated. The efforts of both parties should be directed to securing such a count instead of turning to mutual charges of dishonesty and fraud.

It would be a greater misfortune to the Democrats to seat their man than to lose the election. The loss or gain to that party is trivial compared to the danger, disgrace and evils to the nation at large if there should be a dishonest return or a wrangle over the official count.

What this country needs at present is calmness rather than noise and popular clamor. At the same time there should be an imperative public demand for an honest and above-board count of the vote in New York.

Mr. Blaine, who is a very conservative man and has an excellent and exact idea of the real situation, says that the result will show that he has 1,500 plurality and he is probably correct.

The Next Congress.

The House of Representatives of the Forty-ninth Congress will probably have a small Democratic majority. Should some of the Western states, from whose congressional districts definite returns have not yet been received, show as gratifying gains as were made in some Eastern states, a small Republican majority may be figured out yet. But this is only possible by the splendid example of Pennsylvania and New York being copied elsewhere. A Democratic majority of ten or twelve is now indicated. It may go a few above that figure or fall a few below it.

The Senate is undoubtedly safely Republican for the next two years. It does not seem possible to change this situation. The party has now a majority of four over the Democrats, and another Republican senator from Oregon will, on the 4th of next March, take the seat now occupied by a Democrat. Every one of the eleven Republican senators whose terms expire with the present Congress will probably be succeeded by those of like political faith. If this happens, the party will have a majority of six in the Upper House. Or they might lose four and still retain the ascendancy. So in any event the Republican control of the Senate seems secure.

Keep cool. Don't be frightened. Talk is cheap and threats cost nothing. If Mr. Cleveland is elected, well and good—he will be seated without a word. But if Mr. Blaine carries the decisive state by a single vote he will be placed in the White House. There is no need to talk about what the Republicans will do. Everybody knows that if their man is elected he will be seated just as surely as the 4th of March comes round. In the meantime the Republicans will stick closer to their policy of keeping cool and allowing the other side to do the windmill act.

The rascals will be kept out.

The Philadelphia Press: "It is evident that Free Trade has not made much headway in Wisconsin, though it has some able disciples in that State. The Republicans gain four Congressmen in the State, and, from what we learn, they are all thorough Protectionists. Wisconsin is fast becoming a manufacturing State, and it cannot afford to sacrifice its industrial interests for the sake of a theory. But, more important, still, the farmers of the Northwest have had a better opportunity of studying this question during the last six months than ever before, and they have come to the conclusion that a protective tariff is best for agriculture as well as manufactures."

Pennsylvania has never cast her electoral vote for the losing candidate for the presidency. If there is to be any variation from this long established rule this year, Pennsylvanians will at least have the satisfaction of knowing that the principles which led them to be on the losing side were the principles which ought to have triumphed. It is better to be right than to elect a president, but it is not clear yet that Pennsylvania has not been right and elected the president at the same time.

The Republicans have carried Virginia by 4,500 majority although the Rebel Democrats of that State altered the returns to 7,000 Democratic. In a single county where there are 1,450 more Republican than Democratic votes they counted 700 Democratic majority. This condition of affairs will not be endured and we predict that before this affair is ended the electoral vote of that State will be counted for the men to whom it belongs, Blaine and Logan.

The purpose is avowed plainly of advancing the price of coke; but the day when the boost will be made is not yet set. When that comes it will be time enough to decide whether that heavy but essential staple will develop the buoyancy which its manufacturers have imparted to it. It other words, coke is likely to go up when the demand justifies it, and that may be some time in the not very distant future.

In sixty or eighty years from now Belva Ann Lockwood will gather her grandchildren round her on Sunday morning and tell them how she ran for president in the Fall of '84. And then, when any youngster ventures to ask how many votes she got, he will be spanked and sent to bed without his supper.

Barnum and Gorman's logic: We had to come down 50,000 in our claims on Cleveland in New York; but any man who says that we are not infallible election figurers is a liar, a villain, a cheat, a fraud, and is trying to steal the Presidency! Let us drink blood and eat up earth!!

Indiana and New York seem to have been running a race as to which can come the closest to beating both parties. Shall the judges declare it a dead beat and order it run over?

Princeton College has received $60,000 for the improvement of its art department. In view of this we hope to see the Princeton crew do some better rowing next year.

Patti finally concluded to come over and add a few more American eagles to her collection. She is fondest of the bird as it emerges from the mint.

The present threat against the fairness and freedom of the count in New York appears to come from the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee.

What the Republican party wants is a little more of the lusty doctrine of Pennsylvanianism in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

Poetry.

FADED LEAVES.

The hills are bright with maples yet;
But down the level land
The beech leaves rustle in the wind
As dry and brown as sand.

The clouds in bars of rusty red
Along the hill-tops glow,
As in the still sharp air the frost
Is like a dream of snow.

The berries of the briar-rose
Have lost their rounded pride,
The bitter sweet chrysanthemums
Are drooping, heavy-eyed.

The cricket grows more friendly now,
The dormouse sly and wise,
Hiding away in the disgrace
Of nature from men's eyes.

The pigeons in black wavering lines
Are swinging toward the sun;
And all the wide and withered fields
Proclaim the summer done.

His store of nuts and acorns now
The squirrel hastes to gain,
And sets his house in order for
The winter's dreary reign.

'Tis time to light the evening fire,
To read good books, to sing
The low and lovely songs that breathe
Of the eternal spring.

THE ANGEL IN THE HEART.

The hot sun shone on the yellow ledge,
Leaving of green grass scarce a trace,
Scorching in wrinkles the fern and sedge,
But the well at its foot hid its gleaming face.

Cold and pure and far down it lay:
Thirsty lips o'er its freshness faint,
Turned in bitter reproach away,
Weary sinner and dying saint.

Hurled o'er the ledge by a giant's strength,
A grim, gray bowlder is dropping down;
The waters spring to the brim at length,
And lo! with beauty the leaflets crown.

Heavy it lay in the silent well,
As sorrow lies in a grieving breast;
But ever after for cup and bell
Flowed the rivulet, cool and blest.

The sun and stars in a tender sheen
Gilded its beauty by day and night,
And round its margin in glowing green
Fringes of mosses with flowers unite.

Ah me! The heart is a well spring fair
Of purest waters, but buried still;
God sendeth sorrow and loving care,
And the angel sings like a laughing rill.

HE TOOK THE HINT.

"You're the belle of the town,"
The young man said,
As he smoothed the curls
On her queenly head.

He took the hint, the young man did,
When she gave her little head a fling,
And murmured softly in his ear,
"What good is a bell without a ring?"

Our Story Teller.

Thanksgiving.

BY HELEN WHITNEY CLARKE.

"An so you've sold your farm, Belindy?"

"Yes, an I must say I'm glad of it. A lone woman ain't got no business a-trying to farm, no way. Though I must say I've made out pretty well, this year. I cleared six hundred dollars on the wheat, over and above payin fur the harvestin, thrashin an the like. An I've sold the hay, clover and timothy mixed, fur about three hundred more. But it's awful wearin on a woman, to a-tendin to things and watchin that the hands don't shirk nor nothin. As I was a-sayin, a lone woman ain't got no business with a farm. 'Twas different before Aaron died," and Mrs. Belinda Blossom gave a regretful sigh to the memory of the dead and gone Aaron.

"You needn't to be a lone woman no longer'n you want to, Belindy," quietly observed her sister, Mrs. Jerusha Hatch. "There's Deacon Gibbs now, would give his eyes to——"

"Don't say Deacon Gibbs to me," retorted the widow. "Don't I know what he's after? Don't he know as well as I do that I've got eight thousand dollars put away safe in the Bluegrass Bank? I haven't a doubt he'd like to git the handlin of it, but he never will, I kin tell him that."

"Sho, now, Belindy," remonstrated Mrs. Hatch, "what's the use o' makin the poor man out wuss'n he is? I don't know as he's any likelier to be after the money than Lawyer Green."

"Lawyer Green's got money himself, an it stands to reason 'taint so much of an object to him. Besides I ain't said——"

"Oh no, you haint said. I know, but a body kin put two and two together, I reckin. Well, all I've got to say, I'd ruther have Deacon Gibbs any day, if twas me, than that smooth-spoke, iley-lookin lawyer. But I must be a-gittin home; Bijah'll want his supper, time it's ready," and Mrs. Hatch rolled up her knitting, wrapped it carefully in a cloth, and put on her black sunbonnet and her blue yarn "half-hands."

"You might of stayed to supper, Jemima," said the widow, reproachfully, "I was a-goin to have cream cookies an some of them Lawton blackberry preserves you're so fond of."

"Wal, I'd like migthy well to stay, Belindy, but Bijah, he'll be a lookin fur me to hev supper ready when he comes in from the field. He's allus as hungry as a beaver at night; an I ain't left nothin cooked so he could get himself a bit. I reckin I better go. You go into Miss Larcom's quiltin next week?"

"Oh, I s'pose so. Miss Larcom would get miffed if I didn't," and after another five or ten minutes of conversation Mrs. Hatch got started for home.

Mrs. Belinda Blossom was a typical widow, fair, fat, and not quite forty, and was known as the best housekeeper in and around the neighborhood where she lived.

With even less personal attractions and good qualities than she possessed, she might have changed her widow's weeds for bridal attire long ago, had she so desired. However, for some reasons best known to herself, she had preferred to remain a "lone woman," as she called it, so far. Whether she intended to remain so much longer was a question which puzzled herself quite as much as it did some other parties.

* * * * * *

It was the day of Mrs. Larcom's quilting, and supper was almost ready. The quilt was already out, and by a little preconcerted maneuver on the part of the fun-loving girls, it had been thrown over the widow's head, when taken out of the frame—a piece of mischief which afforded no little amusement, as, according to time-honored tradition, whoever the quilt is first thrown over, is soon to become a bride.

Mrs. Blossom bore her honors blushingly, and her cheeks were still covered with crimson, when the gentlemen began to drop in, just before supper.

Lawyer Greene, who was among the first to arrive, was profuse in his attention to the blooming widow, much to the discomfiture of his less fortunate rival, who could only sit in the corner and cast despairing glances at the object of his affections.

"Just look at Deacon Gibbs," whispered Mahala Wilhams to Dorcas Lamb. "He looks like a hen on a hot griddle, while Lawyer Greene is a-courting the widow."

Dorcas tittered out loud, whereupon the deacon grew red in the face, as if aware that he was the object of their mirth.

"Wal, I reckon I'll be a-goin, Miss Larcom," he announced, approaching the hostess a short time later. "I only just dropped in to see how you was all a gitting along."

"Oh, you must stay to supper, deacon; it's a'most ready now, an I can't let you go before that," declared the hostess, determinedly. But the deacon was equally determined and go he did.

"Deacon Gibbs! Deacon Gibbs! stop a minute, I want to speak to you," cried Mrs. Hatch, rushing out to the porch, where he stood, looking a little bewildered at the unexpected summons.

"I want to ask you to come over the day after to-morrow—Thanksgiving day, you know—and eat dinner with us. Now don't say no—there won't be anybody there only Belindy an our folks. Say you'll come!"

"Wal, I dunno, Miss Hatch," said the deacon, uneasily. "I thank you kindly for the invite, but I've been a feeling kind of blue for a good spell now, an I don't know as I'd be fittin company to go an eat Thanksgivin dinners with folks when I'm blue."

"Sho! that's all nonsense, deacon, you must come now, an I shall be a lookin fur you." And good-hearted little Mrs. Hatch ran back into the house before Deacon Gibbs had time to make another protest.

If Mrs. Blossom noticed the deacon's departure, she betrayed no consciousness of the fact, but demurely continued her flirtation with the lawyer.

Supper, the great event of the day was ready at last, and the guests were doing ample justice to the plentiful array of viands set before them. Boiled ham, chicken pot-pie, mashed potatoes and turnips, apple sauce, custard pie, jelly cake, cookies and doughnuts, all were placed on the table together and the guests were invited to help themselves, which they did with a will.

The meal was well under way, and conversation had flagged considerably, for with hungry people eating and talking are not to be carried on together, when a new arrival came in the person of Hiram Primm, the store-keeper's clerk.

Hiram was soon seated at the table, helping himself right and left to the still abundant substantials and luxuries on the board.

"Heard the news?" he asked, after partaking of a few mouthfuls. "Haint? Wal, the Bluegrass Bank is busted—smashed clean up. Creditors won't get five cents on the dollar."

Exclamations of surprise greeted the unexpected tidings from all sides.

The Widow Blossom turned pale, and gazed wildly at the speaker.

Lawyer Greene also changed countenance as he glanced furtively at Mrs. Blossom's face.

"Is that really so, Hiram?" he asked anxiously.

"It's reely so," declared Hiram. "It will be in the papers to morrow morning."

"Why, Lawyer Greene, you hain't got money there, hev you?"

"Oh, no, certainly not. My funds are secure on real estate. I don't trust to banks," responded the lawyer, complacently.

"Wal, I'm thankful to say my money ain't there, either," said Hiram, gravely, thereby causing a general laugh, as it was a well-known fact that Hiram spent his wages as fast as he earned them.

No one noticed the widow's changed demeanor, though she still looked pale, and declined a second piece of squash pie.

But Lawyer Greene seemed suddenly to have changed his tactics, and was now evidently bent on getting up a flirtation with Martha Williams.

The widow's money affairs were not generally known among her acquaintances, consequently she escaped their condolences. Jemima Hatch though did manage to whisper a few words of sympathy in her ear.

"Don't worry about it, Belindy," she urged; "I'll come over an see you to-morrow, an we'll talk it over."

But Mrs. Blossom did not recover her spirits.

Lawyer Greene did not appear to notice when the widow rose to leave, compelling her to accept the protection of half grown Tom Larcom, much to the surprise of all who noticed the circumstance.

"He was awful sweet on the widder at first," they whispered. "She must of give him the mitten," and the next day it was currently reported that Laywer Greene had proposed to Widow Blossom and been rejected. So much for the truth of what "they say."

Jemima paid the promised visit bright and early the next morning. She found her sister looking pale and dejected.

"How bad is it, Belindy?" she asked. "Did you put all your money in the bank?"

"All—every cent of it," groaned the widow.

"Wal, it is too bad, but never mind; you don't have to give up the house right away, do you?"

"No; not till March."

"So much the better, then; though of course you could have a home with us, right away. But there's your cows, and chickens, and such things. They'll bring a better price after you have wintered 'em, and you kin sell 'em in the spring, and there will be so much gained."

After considerable more conversation on the subject, the widow seemed to brighten up a little, and her sister prepared to take her leave.

"Now you'll be sure to come up an eat a Thanksgivin dinner with us to-morrow, won't you, Belindy?" she urged, and Belinda promised.

Jemima's footsteps had died away, and the widow was still sitting forlorn and despondent, when her reverie was disturbed again.

"Morning, Miss—Miss Blossom," said a hesitating voice, and there stood Deacon Gibbs, nervously twisting his hat in his hands.

The widow placed a chair for her visitor, who sat down, looking more nervous and embarrassed than ever.

"I—I've just heerd," he began, "that you—that the Bluegrass Bank has busted, an' you've lost all your money, and—and I—Oh, Belindy, won't you have me? Say you will, an' you shan't want fur nothin'! I know I ain't rich, but my farm is a good one, an' I've got it all in medder and pastur now, an' kin raise right smart o' stock, an' you should never know you'd lost a cent. Will you, Miss Blos—Bellndy?"

And this was the man she had suspected of wanting her money! The widow hid her face in her hands and cried

Mrs Jerusha was in her element, cooking the Thanksgiving dinner, next day. But in the pauses, between basting the turkey and turning the pumpkin pies, she made frequent trips to the door, shading her eyes with her hand and gazing far down the winding country road.

"I wonder if nary one of 'em ain't a-comin', after all," she muttered more than once in tones of vexation.

The turkey was roasted at last, the pies were done, and the table set, when, on looking down the road again, she was rewarded by a discovery.

"That's the deacon's shay, now," she cried, "an' Belindy not here. Dear me, I wonder if she ain't a-comin', at all? I've a notion to send Bijah over to see."

Then she took another look.

"There's somebody with him—why, if it ain't Belindy herself! I'm so glad. They'll make a match yet, I jest do believe;" and she ran to open the front door.

"Come in, Belindy! Deacon, walk right in. So you did conclude to come, after all."

The deacon smiled complacently.

"Wal, yes, you see I ain't so blue as I was, Miss Hatch. An' then I've got something to be thankful fur now. We'd of got here sooner, only we've been to a weddin'."

"A wedding!" Mrs. Hatch opened her eyes in wonder. "Who was it?" she demanded. "Our own, to be sure," smiled the deacon, with a loving glance at Belinda.

"Delays is dangerous, you know. So we jest drove around to the parson's an' had the preacher jine us right off. An' now your Thanksgivin' is turned into a weddin' dinner, Jemima."

Mrs. Hatch was as much pleased as surprised, and her roast turkey and pumpkin pies, with the other concomtants of a Thanksgiving dinner, answered quite as well for a wedding feast.

But it was not until dinner was over and Belinda had helped to wash up the dishes that she confessed to her auditors a little secret which they did not suspect, namely, that she had drawn all her money out of the Bluegrass Bank the day before it broke; the lawyer's instant change of base on hearing the news of the failure induced her to preserve silence on the subject.

"I meant to invest it some other way," she explained, "and I was awfully shocked when I heard the bank had broke. I couldn't help thinking what a narrow escape I'd had."

Deacon Gibbs had no reason to quarrel with his wife for keeping the secret, since it had saved her from his rival. And Mrs. Deacon Gibbs has never regretted the occurrence which decided her fate.

As for the lawyer, his chagrin upon learning the truth of the matter may be better imagined than described.—Demorest's Monthly.

A fashion paper in describing a watering place belle's attire recently, said she wore carbuncles, and now that poor girl gets 300 different recipes for the cure of boils in every mail.

A Prudent Woman.

Some years ago a retail dealer in the interior of the State, who took butter, eggs and cheese in exchange for dry goods and groceries, found himself overstocked with the former articles, and was worrying about a prospective loss when a buyer from the city called around and had a talk with him. As a result the grocer rushed into his house at noon and shouted to his wife:

"Hanner, what d'ye think! There's a feller here from York who'll take my 2,000 dozen eggs!"

"No?"

"And them seventeen cheeses!"

"Is it possible?"

"And them 400 pounds of butter!"

"You don't say!"

"Yes, going to take 'em all and pay cash down."

"Well, Well! But, Henry, you look out! I know they must eat sich things in New York, but he's buyin' 'nuff to feed half of America for a week, and don't you trust him for any part and take your chances on his finding a market."

A Little Rock man sold his cooking stove to get money to take his family to the circus. When one of his friends remonstrated with him he said:

"We had no use for the stove; had nothing to cook."

"But why didn't you buy something to eat with the money you got for the stove?"

"Then we should have had nothing to cook it on. Don't talk to me, I'm a philosopher."

Scene—The next room. Door shut. Nothing visible except an audible voice the other side of door. Enter audible voice, audibly speaking orally in vocal accents:

Hay!
There, now!
Hol' up!
Hole dup!
Hold dup your red!
Can't you hold your head dup?
Put tin!
Puttit tin!
Put tin your foot!
Turn around!
Oh, goodness gracious! don't you know how to turn around?
Hold your head still!
Don't do that!
T'other arm!
The other arm!
Oh, great land, go to your mother!

It is a man dressing his infant son in the morning.

The sudden change in the weather reminded the young woman of her sealskin sacque packed away upstairs. She brought it down and showed it to her father.

"It looks a little worn and shabby, my dear," said the old gentleman; "I will give you the money to get a new one before cold weather sets in."

"Oh, no, you needn't, papa. A little cleaning and brushing, and it can be made to look very well for another season at least."

She then went into the kitchen and made some biscuits for tea that reminded the writer of swans' down, only they weren't quite so heavy.

The name and address of this girl will be given to any young man whose references are satisfactory.—From a Religious Weekly.

Hanlan.

The failure of Hanlan in his recent sculling contest with Beach is attributed by the press of Sydney, Australia, to his luxurious mode of training. Hanlan is to row another race with Beach for $2 500 a side and the championship. This race takes place on the Parametta river, Australia, early in May. The famous sculler is said to have indulged daily in the following viands while training for the race: Breakfast—Two oranges, two chops and some stewed kidney, with bread. Dinner—Roast mutton and turkey, with carrots, turnips, cauliflower and plenty of butter sauce, a large slice of plum pudding, also custard pudding with champagne sauce, and the wherewithal to wash down these good things was found in a glass of stout, and also a glass of stout and champagne mixed. The menu was changed daily for the sake of variety. Nor did the Canadian shun the society of his fellows, as athletes of old were supposed to do. A week before the race we read that Hanlan invited the mayor of Sydney and a large party of ladies and gentleman to his headquarters at Blandville. After inspecting the boats the company, at Hanlan's invitation, adjourned to the principal room, where champagne was opened, and a number of toasts were proposed. On the following Wednesday another like party visited the Mercantile rowing sheds at the instance of the champion. * * Refreshments were quickly produced; the American consul took the chair and so on. Hanlan proposed the toasts of the ladies. The average mortal could stand a great deal of training under these circumstances. Formerly the termination of the period was looked forward to with joy, as hideous thraldom was then over; but the modern athlete will be apt to regret that he cannot train forever, regaled by turkey, champagne and the smiles of bewitching actresses.

Two of a Trade.

Two middle-aged women, who had not seen each other for years, met the other day in the City Hall park, and embraced effusively. After they had recovered their breath one asked:

"Are you married?"

"Oh, yes, and have five children—my husband is a brick carrier on West Twenty-third street. Are you married?"

"Yes, indeed."

"And your husband?"

"He is a brick carrier too."

"Where does he carry?"

"In his hat."

Caring for Song Birds.

Rochester Chronicle.

"Why, you have no idea," said an old and well-known bird fancier to a reporter the other day, "how little care a song bird requires. It has been my experience—and a good long experience—that the most of the deaths among canaries are caused by over-care and over-feeding.

"Let a lady get a new bird. The chances are it is the first she has ever had the care of. It is a novelty and a curiosity in the house, and she feels as though she must be attending to it all the while, and that if she does not it will die, or stop singing, or something. The result is she will give the bird everything she can think of or everything she has ever heard of a bird eating. You will find crackers, and cake, and bread, and candy, and sugar, and apple—and heaven only knows what—stuck through the bars of the cages for the birds to eat. In the seed-boxes you will find all kinds of seed, mixed, etc. Now it does not seem to me that it requires an extraordinary intelligence to grasp the idea that this is all wrong. I can hush the notes of the hardest German canary ever imported to this country by such in a few weeks. Such sweet dainties fatten the feathered musicians. They lose their voice, they become subject to rheumatism, they get the gout in their feet. They become infested with lice, and they lose any desire for their bath. You hear an unusually brilliant songster, one who is singing loudly, sweetly and almost incessantly, and go and look at the cage he is in. You won't find any sweetbreads and sweetmeats there.

The best bird food is just plain, ordinary, common bird seed—only this and nothing more. It is all I give my birds, and you have heard how they sing. Two or three times a year I buy a cuttlefish bone for them, and I keep some fine gravel or sand in the bottom of the cage for them to pick at. I put a bath dish of water, with the chill reduced, into the cage every morning. Once a week I clean the cage thoroughly, scrubbing the perches.

The Poetry of Motion.

"If easy and graceful manners are not acquired in early life," says a professor of dancing, "they will scarcely ever be possessed at all, and since nothing appears to me to give children so much becoming confidence and behavior, and to raise them to the conversation of those above their age, as dancing, I think they should be taught to dance as soon as they are capable of learning it. Although dancing consists mainly in outward gracefulness of motion, yet I know not how, it gives children manly thoughts and carriage more than anything. Regarded as the outlet or expression of strong feeling, dancing does not require much discussion, for the general rule applies that such demonstrations, for a time at least, sustain, and do not exhaust, the flow of feeling.

"This is what I tell many parents who should like their children to learn dancing but are afraid that the physical exertion will be too much for them. Habit is second nature, and the earlier in life we commence to form good habits the greater the probability of success. If it is desirable, therefore, that children should become graceful in motion, easy in manner, courteous in their intercourse with others, and learn that modest self confidence so characteristic of well-bred persons, let them attend early in life where those accomplishments are in constant practice. Lessons in dancing, in addition to the learning of the fashionable dances, should have for their object physical strength, gracefulness of motion and courtliness of deportment, combined with the greatest possible amount of amusement, so that the minds of pupils may be relieved from the more serious parts of their education."

A School for Sleeping Beauties.

From the New York Morning Journal.

The principal of one of New York's "finishing" schools, wherein girls are supposed to get the final polish, says: "It doesn't make so much difference in a man, perhaps, but a girl owes it to herself to be at all times as handsome as she can—irrespective of her natural expectation of becoming a wife. Therefore, I have introduced the study of slumbrous comeliness.

"The main fault to be corrected is that of sleeping with the mouth open. Very many girls do it. It is a habit carelessly acquired, but often hard to eradicate. Dreadfully unfeminine snoring is a consequence I teach my girls to close their lips snugly before dropping to sleep, and to avoid throwing their heads back too far on the pillow, so that their mouths won't fall open as soon as the muscles are relaxed.

"I conjure them, too, to prepare a toilet for the night as careful, though less elaborate, than that for the day. Their night clothes should be neat, well-fitting and adapted to their individuality. They should regard a night cap with horror. Their hair should not be unbecomingly done up in a tight knot, but adjusted with a view to both comfort and presentability. Their poses on the couch should no more be awkward than those of their waking hours, and I instruct them to so habituate themselves to gracefulness in bed that it will become instinctive. That is about all there is of the system."

War Cutting Off the Supply of Hair.

From the London Times.

The troubles in China are unfavorably affecting one of the most important minor industries of Marseilles, and may interfere with female heads all over Europe in a way their owners little expect. China has ceased to send hair to France, whether because its export has been interdicted by authority or because Chinese dealers in the article are too patriotic to deal with their enemies, has not yet been ascertained. The Iraooady, which arrived in August from Hong Hong, brought only three bales of this interesting merchandise, and the Sindh which arrived last month brought but a single case.

Marseilles is the principal human hair market in Europe. The imports average 80,000 kilogrammes (about 80 tons), of which fully one-half come from China. For the rest, Italy supplies 22,000, Cochin China 1,374, the English East Indies 2,000, Japan 538, Algeria 431, Turkey 98, Austria 57, and Spain 13 kilogrammes. Thus Cochin China, China and Japan furnish a greater quantity than Italy, which was formerly almost the sole source of supply. As education extends it becomes increasingly difficult to persuade young women in Europe to part with their tresses. The only parts of France where any can still be procured are Brittany and Auvergne.

Where Women are Old at Thirty.

From a Letter to the Montreal Star.

The government of the house of the Brahmin is strictly in the hands of the man; of the father during the youth of the family, and of the eldest son after he marries. The son always takes his wife home to the parental roof, and, as the sons marry, additions are built to the house until it becomes a village in itself. In this place the women are imprisoned—literally buried alive. From the day of their marriage, which is at a very early age, they never see more of the outer world than the narrow expanse of the sky and cloud that looks down upon them between the walls of their prison home. No men are allowed to enter the house but the members of the family and the priest, except on very rare occasions, and then unseen by the women. Married at 10 years—for spinsterhood is abominable—mothers at 12, they are old at the beginning of their lustrum. They die of sheer old age at about 30.

An Oddity Showing a Law in Optics.

Here is a very singular illustration of the optical delusion which a change of position will sometimes effect:

Take a row of ordinary capital letters and figures.

88888SXXXXXXX3333338888

They are such as are made up of two parts of equal shapes. Look carefully at these and you will perceive that the upper halves of the characters are a very little smaller than the lower halves—so little that an ordinary eye declares them to be of equal size. Now turn the paper upside down and, without any careful looking, you will see that this difference in size is very much exaggerated; that the real top half of the letter is very much smaller than the bottom half.

The Jug and the Jar.

A Jug and a Jar which found themselves on a shelf together began to plume themselves on their Merits.

"I cost 28 cents," observed the Jug.

"And my owner walked ten miles to secure me," replied the Jar.

"I hold two gallons of water"

"And I am nearly always filled with milk."

"My master takes me to the hayfield and gives me the shadiest spot."

"And my women carry me in their arms up and down the cellar stairs."

They were still disputing when the Peasant's wife entered the room and said to herself:

"My husband having brought home a new tin pail, I can now throw the old Jar and Jug out of the back door."

MORAL.—Our merits are best known to ourselves; our faults to the world.

Quick work in Court: "I grant an absolute divorce to both parties," said the Judge. "Call the next case."

"But the children, your honor. What disposition shall be made of them?"

"Equal division. Let each party take half. Call the next—"

"But there are three children, your Hon—"

"Can't help it. That's their look out, not mine. Call the next case."

It is said that the use of tobacco paralyzes the heart and estranges a man from his wife. "But when the wife becomes estranged from the husband," asks the Detroit Free Press, "what paralyzes the sympathetic nerve then?" It is usually some other man in that case.

The "Prominent Citizen."

He was supposed to be worth $100,000 and he flattered himself that when he slept an hour later than usual in the morning, all the business in the city waited for him to get out of bed. When a letter arrived a few days ago demanding his presence in New England for three or four weeks, he hesitated to go. He knew just how broken up the city would be, and he had his fears that nothing would be done in the paying line, and that all building would at once stop dead still.

However, the prominent citizen at last decided to go, and he got off quietly. Nobody rushed out to stop him and beg him to put off his journey, and as far as he has since learned the council has passed no resolutions of regret. He returned the other evening, and great was his surprise to find the city still here. It hadn't strayed or been stolen. The city hall hadn't tumbled down, and he couldn't find grass growing in any of the business streets. This was bad enough, but as he walked up the street he met a friend who called out:

"Hello! Blank, going away?"

"No, sir, I have just returned from a month's trip to England."

"Indeed! Why, I hadn't even missed you."

A few steps further on he encountered another, who was still more surprised to hear that he had been absent, and added,

"And the paper didn't even mention the fact!"

The prominent citizen reached home to find everything running as smoothly and as satisfactorily as when he left. It was a great shock to him, but the climax came when he was called to the door to see a humble looking man who said:

"You know I was talking to you three or four days ago about trimming up your trees, and I called to say it would be a job worth about $4."

The prominent citizen had returned. What of it?

A Case of squelch.

A Chicago drummer balanced his chin on the edge of the seat in front of him, and tickled a sandy haired passenger's ear with the remark:

"You've been in Chicago, of course?"

"Where?"

"Chicago."

An uncertain look came into the sandy-haired man's eyes.

"Let me see!" he mused, retrospectively; "'pears to me I must have passed through there. I've traveled a good deal. I know I've heard the name before What line of road is it on?"

"Forty lines of road. It's the biggest railroad center on earth."

"Not bigger'n Crestline, O., it it?" asked the passenger with an amazed expression. "I've seen four trains to once at Crestline waitin' to start off. Talk about noise and confusion!"

The Chicago man's teeth began to chatter.

"Is Chicago a place where trains stop for dinner?"

"Naw," said the disgusted drummer; "Chicago is a place where the passengers stop for dinner."

"Of course; that's what I meant," explained the red-headed man gently. "Fact is," he went on with confidential frankness, "I've traveled so much and been in so many different places in my lifetime that I don't pretend to remember more than a quarter of 'em. What's the name of the hotel in Chicago?"

"There ain't any," said the drummer gloomily.

Then he walked forward to the filter, filled his mouth full of water, gargled his throat, whooshed the liquid on the floor, and hung his leg over the corner of the box.

"Who is that evil-eyed, pink-haired, lumpy-legged, prairie-eared, microbe at the other end of the car?" he asked of the conductor who was passing through the car.

"Do you mean that gentleman looking out of the window?"

"Ya-as."

"He is a fish merchant from St. Louis."

A Little Savage.

About the time when baby begins to put away monkey manners, and to stand on two feet like a man, he begins to show, in a very marked degree, the characteristics of savage tribes. For two or three years of this part of life the best baby is a little savage. His ideas of property are intensely savage. He may be said to be always more or less on the grab (I object to slang as much as any man, but really there is no other way of describing the tendencies exhibited at this stage of baby's career). If he has small brothers or sisters (or both), he is always more or less at war with these neighboring savages. If he is deprived of anything he has come to regard as his property (quite mistaken, it may well be), or if he sees in the hands of his small kinsfolk any goods or chattels which seem pleasing in his eyes, he has but one way of expressing his wishes; using his hands as weapons if he has no others handy, but bringing down a stick or brush or book (as the case may be) on the head of his enemy with all the zeal of a Fijian or an Ojibeway on the warpath. Girl babies are pretty nearly as bad as boy babies in these matters, only the girl savage differs from the boy savage as much as savage women differ from savage men.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a fine blood depurent, a rational cathartic, and a superb anti-bilious specific. It rallies the failing energies of the debilitated, and checks premature decay. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dyspepsia and bowel complaints are among the evils which it entirely removes. In tropical countries, where the liver and bowels are organs most unfavorably affected by the combined influence of climate, diet and water, it is a very necessary safeguard.

Put a Brand on Him.

"Women are a necessary evil," he said, bringing down his fist hard on the counter to emphasize the heartless remark. It was in the village store at West Milton, Saratoga county, and the speaker was the central figure of a group of bucholic philosophers. He was homely, slovenly and sixty.

"There's where I differ from you altogether," said Mr. George T. Graham, of the same place. "Women are mostly what men make 'em. When husbands are brutes wives fall into submission or make home hot for the men; and they're unnatural in either character. Love them, and especially be good to them when they're sick, and you'll have no trouble. There's my own wife, now; she's suffered a good deal with dyspepsia, nervous prostration and other ailments that took the bloom off her cheeks and the spring out of her step. Well, she saw an advertisement of PARKER'S TONIC and thought it would be just the thing for her case. Gentlemen, I sent five miles after a bottle. She took it. I sent again after more. So several times. Trouble? Why, if you could see how much good it has done her you would say that women are the greatest of God's blessings, and PARKER'S TONIC is the next."

This preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be called simply PARKER'S TONIC. This change has been rendered necessary by substitutes imposed upon their customers by unprincipled dealers under the name of ginger; and as ginger is really an unimportant flavoring ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all the bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the fac simile signature of Hiscox & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper. 16 49 4t

CONSTIPATION!

There is no medium through which disease so often attacks the system as by Constipation, and there is no other ill flesh is heir to more apt to be neglected, from the fact material inconvenience may not be immediately felt from irregular action of the bowels. When there is not regular action the retention of decayed and effete matter, with its poisonous gases, soon poisons the whole system by being absorbed into it, causing piles, fistula, headache, impure blood and many other serious affections. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS will immediately relieve, and one bottle positively cure or relieve any case of Constipation.

—Was troubled for a year with torpid liver and indigestion, and after trying everything imaginable used BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. The first bottle revived me and the second cured me entirely."—J. S. Williamson, Rochester, N. Y.

THIS CELEBRATED WINE is the pure juice of the dead ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards. Its invaluable are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child may partake of it and the weakest invalid use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated, and suited to the various ailments that affect the weaker sex.

Tonic and Strengthening Properties

It is in every respect A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice.

It is the juice of the Oporto Grapes, preserved in its natural, fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits and will keep in any climate.

Speer's Burgundy.

Is a dark rich medium Dry Wine, used by the wealthy classes as a Table or Dinner Wine, and by physicians in cases where a dry wine instead of a sweet port is desired.

Speer's (Sociaite) Claret.

Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry.

Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy.

IS A PURE distillation from the grape, and stands unrivaled in this country for medicinal purposes.

It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.

MANHOOD

How Lost, How Restored!

Just published, a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, IMPOTENCY, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also CONSUMPTION, EPILEPSY and FITS, Induced by self-indulgence, or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

LATEST TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

Temperate but firm Words.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—By the republican state committee of California, the following dispatch was sent from San Francisco to Chairman Jones:

"What right has the Morey letter fraud, Barnum or any democrat to assume the election of Cleveland while the result is fairly in doubt? Why should any one attempt to create excitement and forestal public opinion? No republican worthy of the name wants anything but a fair count and a true result, and that must be had in spite of democratic bluster and impudence. The democrat who assumes that all republicans are cheats makes himself a rascal. Do your duty fearlessly, and all fair-minded men of both parties will stand by you."

Chairman Jones also received the following dispatch from Augustus E. Wilson, republican nominee for congress in Louisville, Kentucky:

"The republicans of Louisville fully appreciate the responsibility resting on your committee, and stand pledged to sustain you in any step you may take to secure an honest count of the legal votes of New York. Ready to yield to an honest plurality against us, we are equally ready to help to defend one for us."

The President's Thanksgiving Proclamation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—President Arthur to-day issued the following proclamation:

The season is nigh when it is the yearly wont of this people to observe a day, appointed for that purpose by the President, as an especial occasion for thanksgiving unto God. Now therefore, in recognition of this hallowed custom, I, Chester A. Arthur, President of the United States, do hereby designate as such day of general thanksgiving Thursday, the 27th of this present November. And I do recommend that throughout the land the people, ceasing from their accustomed occupations, do then keep holiday at their several homes and their several places of worship, and with heart and voice pay reverent acknowledgment to the Giver of all good for the countless blessings wherewith He hath visited this nation.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 10.—Governor Pattison this morning issued his proclamation appointing a day of thanksgiving, praise and prayer. It is as follows:

Our most humble and heartfelt thanksgivings and praise are due to Almighty God for His gracious goodness, and great loving kindness, to us and to all men.

In the midst of His judgment He has remembered mercy.

He has saved us from the pestilence that walketh in darkness and the destruction that wasteth at noon day.

He has blessed us with abundant harvests and profound peace.

I, therefore, do hereby appoint Thursday, the 27th day of the present month, as a day of general thanksgiving, praise and prayer.

And I recommend that the people of this commonwealth, abstaining from their usual business occupations and pursuits at their homes, and in their respective places of worship do render thanksgiving and praise to the God of States for his numberless blessings, and that they do further unite in solemn prayer, beseeching Him to preserve us evermore from all perils and to continue. His loving kindness to us."

The Empire State.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—1 a. m.—On a careful review of the figures by the districts as furnished by the agents of the associated press corrected by the returns received during the day so as to bring the record down to this time the total vote of the state stands for Blaine 558,426, for Cleveland 559,886. There are eighteen districts from which returns are still behind or questioned. These in 1880 gave Garfield a plurality of 736. The counties in which the lacking districts are located are Essex, Madison, Saratoga, Sullivan and Ulster counties.

When the State Canvassing Board will Meet.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 7.—The State Board of Canvassers will meet on Tuesday next, when the vote of the State will be officially canvassed and announced. The Board is composed of the Secretary of State Carr (Republican), and Comptroller Chapin, Attorney General O'Brien, State Treasurer Maxwell and State Engineer Sweet, the last four are all Democrats. Perfect fairness seems to be assured in the action of the canvassers.

Fatal Fool Hardiness.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, Nov. 9.—Prof. Jones, superintendent of city schools at Mt. Pleasant, with another gentleman and five ladies, entered a small skiff on an artificial lake near that place, Friday night. The boat was only intended for three persons and soon capsized. Professor Jones, Ella Carpenter, a teacher in the public school, and Etta Teter and Edward Braugh, students, were drowned. Three of the ladies were rescued.

The Present Situation.

HEADQUARTERS REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITEE, November 8, 1884.

The republican national committee are taking the most careful and thorough measures to ascertain errors, if any have been made, and frauds, if any have been committed, in the returns of the late election in the state of New York.

If Mr. Cleveland shall be found to have a plurality of even one vote, prompt acquiescence will follow from the republicans of the United States. If Mr. Blaine shall be found to have a plurality of only one vote, prompt acquiescence will be expected from the democrats of the United States.

The belief of this committee, founded upon investigation, is that Mr. Blaine has a plurality of several hundred votes, and if that be so, every honest man will demand that it be officially declared. Until the official declaration shall be made we ask the public to unite with us in an honorable effort to secure a perfectly fair count. Purity in elections is the only safety for republican institutions. B. F. JONES, Chairman, SAMUEL FESSENDEN, Secretary.

Congressman Arnot Improving.

ELMIRA, Nov. 6.—Congressman John Arnot of this district, who was injured by an explosion of gas at his bank here three weeks ago, is slowly recovering from his injuries. The worst burns, about the neck, arms, and breast, are healing healthily. He is up and about the house, but has not been out yet. Some apprehension was felt because of the shock he received, he being thrown some ten feet, and striking on the back of his head against a drawer handle. His nervous system was terribly strained On Monday and Tuesday of this week his physician and friends were seriously alarmed as to his condition, but he is much better to-day. Unless something unexpected sets in, he will take his seat in Congress at the opening of the session in December

Shooting her Husband and Child and Herself.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—About half past 4 o'clock this afternoon Mrs. Gardner, wife of Dr. Schuyler Gardner, formerly of Jefferson county, New York, shot her husband and young child, both through the head, killing them instantly. Taking up the dead child she carried it across the street to a neighbor's house, left it there, and, calling to her neighbor to come over and see her husband, whom she had killed, returned to her own house and shot herself through the temple. Her husband lost his property a short time ago, which made him morose and sullen, and he accused his wife of infidelity. This seems to have unbalanced her mind. At the time of the shooting he was bidding her good-by preparatory to going to Rock Falls, Ill., and it is supposed that she thought he was going to desert her.

Mobbing of a Newspaper Office.

TROY, Nov. 7.—A captain of police and seven patrolmen are guarding the Telegram building, which is now surrounded by a mob of six or seven thousand excited men. The Telegram's bulletin boards have been torn down and broken into splinters. By request of Police Captain Cary no more bulletins are to be posted. The mob seems to be good-natured and there is not much fear of violence. Two newsboys had their 10 o'clock Telegrams taken away from them and torn up. All the extra policemen are on duty.

Death of Mrs. General Albright.

MAUCH CHUNK, Nov. 10.—Naomi Evelyn Albright, widow of the late General Charles Albright, died yesterday morning at 2 o'clock, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Albright was widely known for her charities, having considerable means, which she constantly employed in good work. She was one of the founders of Methodism in this community.

The Base Ball Players.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The arbitration committee, acting under the national agreement of the Professional Base Ball Players' Association, met here to-day. The National League, the American Association and the Eastern League were represented by delegations. The Northwestern League, which was represented at the spring meeting of the committee, having since disbanded, was not represented. A. G. Mills, of New York, presided. Henry Diddlebock, of Philadelphia, was elected secretary and treasurer. It was resolved that in view of the disorganized state of the Eastern League, that unless the secretary of that League exhibited at the spring meeting of the committee on arbitration, to be held in April, 1885, documentary evidence showing an active membership of not less than six clubs, the Eastern League shall forfeit its membership in the committee. The committee adjourned to meet in Philadelphia on the first Friday in April, 1885.

The Plenary Council.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 9.—The third plenary council in the United States opened this morning at the cathedral in this city, and the brilliancy and numbers of the opening service exceeded any religious event in the history of the country. It only needed a herald pursuivant to make one believe that he looked on some gathering of princes and potentates, so rich and dazzling were the colors of the vestments worn and jeweled crosses raised aloft in the clear air. Most Rev. Archbishop Kenyeck, of St. Louis, celebrated the grand high mass, assisted by Revs. Lyman and McCallen. Archbishop Ryan preached on "The Church and Her Councils." At the close of the sermon Archbishop Gibbons offered the inaugural prayers for the plenary council, after which the decree of the pope authorizing the third plenary council was read. Regular business will commence to-morrow

Excitement among the Potters.

TRENTON, Nov. 9.—It was rumored throughout the city to-day that notices were to be posted in the potteries to-morrow announcing a reduction of twenty-five per cent. in wages, because of Cleveland's election. The rumor created considerable excitement among the workingmen of the city. It proves to be unfounded so far as a reduction in wages is concerned, but the number of men employed is to be lessened. Two of the leading potters said to-night that they were compelled to reduce expenses somewhat. While they were not especially alarmed by Cleveland's election, they believed it would affect trade. In fact, trade was already affected. Business had been poor for several weeks and the orders for goods were lighter then they had been for a long while.

A Vessel and Six Sailors Lost.

BOSTON, Nov. 10.—The advices from Turks Island, under date of November 2, state that the brig Julia E. Hoskill, Captain Paine, sailed from Wavassa, October 11, for Baltimore with guano. She encountered a hurricane on October 14, and sprung a leak which rapidly increased and the brig was abandoned on the 16th, and her crew, eight in number, took to the boats and Caicos Island. In attempting to land the boat capsized and all on board, except the captain and a sailor named Henry Grant, were drowned.

A Gift to Lieutenant Greely.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Nov. 5.—At the home of John A. Greely to-night Lieutenant A. W. Greely was presented with an elgant silver service by the Greely testimonial committee. Lieutenant Greely leaves to-morrow for Washington.

Burnt in Effigy.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Nov. 8.—This evening the people of College Hill were aroused by the ringing of bells, blowing of horns and cheering. Looking out, they saw the students of the college marching through the streets, headed by a transparency upon which was the name St. John. After this was dragged an image of that person. After they had marched for some time they raised the image poles and applied the match, and amid loud cheering, blowing of horns, ringing of bells and tolling of the big bell of the college, the image was consumed, after which three groans were given to St. John, and then three rousing cheers for Blaine and Logan. They then formed in line and paraded the streets, shouting "Blaine, Blaine, James G. Blaine." In a short time they dispersed and all was quiet. The feeling among the students against St. John is intense, as they put upon him the blame of the near defeat of the Republican candidates.

The Vote.

New York Sun (Ind. Dem).

Grover Cleveland was beaten in his own ward. If he had been running for alderman, he would have been rejected by his nearest neighbors.

Grover Cleveland was beaten in his own city. If he had been running this year for mayor of Buffalo, the votes of his fellow-citizens would have declared him unworthy to fill that office.

Grover Cleveland was beaten in his own county. If he had been running again for sheriff of Erie, the people of that county would have expressed their preference for some other hangman.

Grover Cleveland was beaten in his own Congress district.

Short Telegrams

STERLING, Kan., Nov. 9.—St. John was burned in effigy on the principal street of this town on Friday evening.

WEST CHESTER, Nov. 6.—For forcibly putting Dr. David Euen, reporter of the News, out of his office without cause in August last, Sheriff William Baker was sentenced to-day to pay $10 and costs of prosecution. He was tried and found guilty of assault and battery in the courts of this county last week.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Mr. Henry George, who arrived on the steamer Germanic to-day, says he came over in response to an invitation extended by the Scottish Land Restriction League. He will remain in this country until the middle of January. He expresses the greatest sympathy with the crofters.

AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 7.—Blaine has sent the following to Mr. Jones, chairman of the republican national committee: I am advised that there have been frauds committed in New York state. I believe that the honest vote of the state gives a republican plurality and I ask the committee to see that we have a fair and honest count.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Roscoe Conkling has been retained by the democratic national committee to act in any proceedings that may arise in relation to the pending canvass. Conkling is to-night in consultation at the Hoffman house with the members of the committee of lawyers who have undertaken to see a fair count.

SILVER PLUME, Col., Nov. 6.—The entire business portion of this town was burned this morning. The loss will reach $100,000. The streets are filled with crowds of excited and homeless people. Several lives have been lost and but one body has so far been recovered. Silver Plume is a small mining camp of a few hundred inhabitants, three miles west of Georgetown. It is impossible at present to obtain an accurate account of the loss of life and the amount of property destroyed.

Nov. 8, 1884.

These cold frosty mornings make us think about brushing up our overcoats and have torn mittens mended.

The county, last Tuesday, was pretty badly patched up.

The first report of the election gave such a shock to the telephones in this place that they refused to carry messages until better news reached us.

Old mother "Goose" was casting her feathers on Thursday.

The Pleasant Hill school house is to be repaired. Mr. Walizer is the contractor.

Mr. John Hagen has removed the toll-gate from Mr. Lungey's residence to his own just outside the borough limits.

There was a good deal of cheering done on Thursday evening when the news came of Blaine's election.

She just returned from preaching. "Alice," she said, "you should have been at preaching; every person had on her best. I wonder where Miss —— got that new hat. Miss —— has a new silk dress, I wonder how much it cost. Miss —— just looks horrible with that hat on." To show and see "style" seems to be the main object of going to church these days.

Whew, didn't the wise and learned(?) critic(?) of the Watchman, P. Gray Meek, give a "stunner" to the NEWS' correspondent in regard to "Howard Humor." Gray, now go and "bag your head" or consult your dictionary. Such humorous criticisms are pleasant to read. Shoot 'em off, Gray. MAC.

Attracted by a Flower.

On the evening of October 22d, the residence of Mr. Robert Glenn was one of delightful confusion and expectancy. The doors were thrown open to the flower loving public. The ladies having one of those rare plants, the Cereus Grandiflorus, night-blooming, which opened one of its magnificent buds. Friends at a distance were notified by postal card and the flower-loving friends of the village by the ringing of Mr. Glenn's large dinner bell (previously arranged). Some showed their rare love and appreciation for flowers by traveling miles to witness this grand sight, intending to repeat the ride next night if the bud failed to open. From Pine Grove Mills, Glades, Graysville, and Pennsylvania Furnace, flower-loving friends came till in all they numbered about 60. About 6 p. m. the bud began to expand, its beautiful lance-shaped golden sepals gradually and visibly relaxing and exposing the pearly white petals and silky anther's filling the rooms with the chaste and refined perfume, reaching perfection by 9 p. m., when it measured 12 inches across and was the delight of all beholders. The company was also treated to some very fine music both instrumental and vocal, and altogether the evening spent at Glenn Home was one long to be remembered. BAS BLEU.

—Thursday and Friday next, Nov. 13 and 14, will be the occasion of the fifteenth annual convention of the Centre County Sunday-school Association. It will be held in the pleasant village of Port Matilda. There will be four sessions, the first one at 7 o'clock Thursday evening and the remaining three the next day, ending at night. Doubtless, the delegates from each Sunday-school have been chosen and will be in attendance. The convention will be highly interesting and will repay all who give themselves the trouble to attend.

—The original University Singers of New Orleans rendered a very charming concert on Saturday evening at the roller rink. They occupied a platform erected especially for them, the audience about half filling the house and being seated on benches hastily improvised for the purpose. The eight voices which compose the chorus mingle in delightful melody. It is a rare pleasure to listen to them. They gave a sacred concert on Sunday evening in the A. M. E. church, to which an admission of 25 cents was asked.

—Mr. Samuel Pottorf is now in full control of the carriage works so long owned by Mr. John Bartruff. Mr. P. will conduct the establishment in the same skillful and business-like manner that has always characterized its management.

More Forcible than Poetical.

Here is an epitaph which Don Piatt recently transcribed from a tombstone in a New Hampshire graveyard. There was no lack of candor in that part of the Granite State, evidence:

Here lies old Caleb Ham,
By trade a bum;
When Caleb died the devil cried,
Come, Caleb, come.

The leopards at Simla are very numerous this season. The other evening a gentleman noticed two playing on his lawn-tennis court. He set a spring trip and the following morning was successful in bagging a fine specimen.

Catarrh

Is a very prevalent and exceedingly disagreeable disease, liable, if neglected, to develop into serious consumption. Being a constitutional disease, it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, effecting a radical and permanent cure of catarrh in even its most severe forms. Made only by C. L. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

"Web" Contributes the Usual Number of Very Interesting "Lines from Loveville."

LOVEVILLE, Nov. 6, 1884.

The election is over.

Oh, my, such muddy roads.

Mr. W. M. Rider is improving in health.

Mr. James Blackburn departs for Maryland again soon.

Miss Lizzie Ellenbarger was away last week attending a wedding.

Miss Lizzie M. and Master Newton Cole returned home to attend school this winter.

Mr. Curtin Roop came home from Williamsport Friday last for the privilege of voting. He returned Tuesday morning.

The night of All-Hallow-E'en was celebrated by some one throwing down fences and other similar exploits.

The farmers in Huntingdon county are butchering because pleuro pneumonia is raging there among the hogs.

Mr. Charles Blake, of Jefferson, Green county, Iowa, spent two days in Loveville this week at the home of Mr. W. H. Fink, his brother-in-law.

Mr. Jacob Bartoe, while out hunting one day last week, saw two fine large deer. Having only a shot gun, and it insufficiently loaded, he left the deer in the woods.

Those pestiferous rascals, the thieves, are plying their trade through this valley, picking up bees, butter, turkeys, overcoats, etc. We think that taking bees is rather a sting-y business.

On Tuesday Stormstown, (owing to the disagreeable state of the weather, we presume,) was quiet, men going to the polls and depositing their ballots unmolested. We, however, listened to a somewhat "hot" discussion of a private matter, but it fortunally ended without bloodshed.

On Wednesday of last week Mr. George Wike, of the Juniata mines, went out rabbit hunting, when quite suddenly he was startled by the sound of "boo!" "boo!" as if a bear was in close proximity. George, thinking, no doubt, that absence was the better part of discretion, took to his heels, running a half mile to the mines. After recounting the startling story of a bear near by, and thoroughly arousing the excitement of others, they all returned to find only an old sow with pigs instead of the expected bear.

There died at the residence of Mr. C. D. Miller, near Rock Spring, on Wednesday, the 29th ult., Mrs. Sophia Gates, aged 81 years, 7 months and 2 days. This venerable lady having passed her fourscore years, saw no doubt many of the trials and troubles of this world, but through Him who worketh all good, she was finally called to lay down this life and to go to receive the reward given by that righteous Judge who shall judge all mankind according to the deeds done in the body. The remains were interred in the Lutheran cemetery at Gatesburg, Rev. Alfred Koser officiating.

We also record the death of Mrs. Mary M. Ebbs, which occurred on the 30th ult., at the residence of Mr. George Cornelius of this place. Deceased was born May 5, 1810, thus reaching the age of 74 years, 1 month and 25 days. She was the mother of twelve children and saw eleven of them happily married (one dying when a child). Eight of them are still living—five daughters and three sons. She had sixty-five grandchildren and twenty great grandchildren, twenty-six of the former and four of the latter attending her funeral, which took place on Saturday. Her remains were interred in the Ross cemetery, Rev. W. R. Whitney officiating. She was a consistent member of the M. E. church for 54 years and died triumphing in the faith that in life was her mainstay and guide, leaving to her children a bright testimony of the assurance in death of the believing Christian. She is gone, but their loss is her gain. She has only left the church militant on earth to join the church triumphant in heaven, there to sing praises to the Lamb forever.

By request, we append the deceased's favorite hymn, desiring its publication for the reason that it has long ago passed from the list of orthodox hymns.

FEED MY LAMBS.

When Christ, the Lord, was here below
About the works He came to do,
Before he left His little band,
He gave to them this great command.

CHORUS:
And oh! how good it is to be blessed,
And dwell where loving Jesus is.

Though fishing Peter leads the way,
And nothing's caugh till break of day,
To give them food thus Jesus stands,
And says to Peter—"Feed my Lambs."

Thomas was of a doubtful mind,
Yet Jesus leaves him not behind.
"Thomas," he says, "behold my hands,
And Simon Peter—'Feed my Lambs.'"

Peter he once denied his Lord
By not attending to his word,
Yet Jesus knew how frail was man,
And says to Peter—"Feed my Lambs."

Oh, little children, do not fear,
While Christ, your Saviour, is so near,
Poor doubting souls are in His hands,
And precious food for all his lambs.

The richest feast is yet above,
In the enjoyment of His love.
Then run to Christ with all your might,
And I will try to keep in sight.

Now here's my heart and here's my hand,
To meet you in that heavenly land.
My hand again I give to thee,
Hoping thy face in heaven to see.

—It was Harry Chaapel, the florist of Williamsport, who furnished the flowers for the Bauland-Grauer wedding about three weeks ago. We have already alluded to the bee-hive and marriage bell, in addition to which there were to large "Plateau" baskets for the table, one of pink buds, the other beautiful buff and crimson. The bride's bouquet was of elegant Nephetos buds and lily-of-the-valley and a corsage bouquet of white buds and ferns.

THE SEALSKIN SACQUE.

How dear to my heart is the sacque made of Sealskin,
A garment adapted to keep out the cold!
'Tis not like the Jersey, which fits like an eelskin;
'Tis loose, graceful, easy and fair to behold.
How smooth and how glossy! Its beauty enchants me;
What garment so lovely when worn by a belle!
Both waking and sleeping its poetry haunts me—
The sacque made of sealskin that fits me so well;
The sacque made of sealskin—of smooth, glossy sealskin—
The beautiful sacque that fits me so well!

How many devices I used to obtain it!
How often my husband I kissed and caress'd,
What loving contrivances practiced to gain it!
That now I'm ashamed of, it must be confess'd!
At length he succumbed, and he opened his wallet—
What joy then possess'd me no language can tell!
He purchased the garment, a poem I call it,
The sacque made of sealskin that fits me so well!
The rythmical garment—the beautiful garment—
The smooth, glossy garment that fits me so well!

And now to be proud I've indeed ample reason
For with it my form I will shortly adorn.
Cold weather's approaching, the long-wished-for season
When sacques made of sealskin by ladies are worn.
I'll hold my head high when I'm out promenading,
And never be weary of cutting a swell;
Ah! me, 'tis a vision of beauty unfading,
The sacque made of sealskin that fits me so well!
The sacque made of sealskin—of smooth, glossy sealskin—
The garment enchanting that fits me so well.

—George Russell Jackson.

Ringworm Humor and Salt-Rheum.

RAYNHAM, MASS., Aug. 12, 1878.

C. I. HOOD & Co.: Gentlemen— * * * * I have had ringworm humor and salt-rheum so badly that my body was covered with raw sores; so, also, my head and face. I have had any number of doctors in the last seven years, and none of them could cure me. One day my mother was in the city of Taunton, and found one of your cook books, and in reading it I found many people testifying to cures from the use of your Sarsaparilla and Olive Ointment. I felt forced to try it, although I had seen many things advertised that never did me any good. I have now taken two small bottles and one large one of Sarsaparilla, and used three boxes of Ointment. I now call myself cured. Nothing can be seen of the humor but the dim outlines of the sores. I shall take two more bottles, and then the cure will be complete.

I am gratefully yours,
EDGAR F. WHITMAN.

Biliousness, Sick Headache.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & Co.: Gents—Please send me by express two bottles HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA and a few Cook Books for distribution. Your preparation has worked wonders in the case of my wife, who has been troubled with sick headache and biliousness for years. She only took one-half teaspoonful at a dose, and has not been so well for five years as now. She found that within a week after taking it she felt very much better, and is now entirely free from those severe headaches. She has not taken any of any account since last spring, and what little she had is lent to do some others some good, and we must have it in the house.

Yours truly,
HOMER B. NASH.

Stock Complete! Nothing Wanting!

SPICES.—The best cook in the land cannot cook successfully without pure, fresh spices. These we have in every variety. Well-seasoned food adds to long life and happiness.

SUGARS AND SYRUPS.—In Sugars and Syrups we have all the best brands in the market. Much of the sugar now sold is adulterated, and in an article of this kind there is great waste. We buy from reliable dealers, and handle only the genuine goods.

TEAS AND COFFEES.—No breakfast can be thoroughly enjoyed without a good cup of coffee or tea. A drink of this kind is stimulating and goes right to the spot. Our Coffees and Teas are fresh and strictly pure. The fragrant odor which escapes from the steaming pot as it comes in from the kitchen will convince you of this. We sell more coffee than any other two houses in the county. Why? Because we sell the best and the people know it.

NUTS, CONFECTIONERY, ETC.—In Nuts and Confectionery we have everything that is nice, and just what will please the young folks, and old folks as well. Our candies are all pure and wholesome; We do not handle the highly-colored, poisonous mixtures that ruin and decay the teeth. We have new Florida oranges (this fall's crop), fine Figs and Prunes, and a choice line of Canned Fruits and Preserves. Bear this in mind when preparing to Celebrate the merry holidays.

We make special mention of the above lines of goods because they are all leading articles at this season of the year. In other lines our stock is equally fresh and complete.

We buy the Best Goods and sell at the Lowest Figures.

Call in and inspect our No. 1 goods. Then you will know where to purchase when your cupboard needs replenishing.

LATEST TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

New York Figures.

Latest returns indicate the state to be about 8,000. The republicans will have a majority of the legislature and a full congressional delegation.

INDIANA.

673 voting places indicate a plurality of 2,000 for Blaine.

WEST VIRGINIA.

A gain of 700 will give Blaine this state. Sixteen counties give a net republican gain of 1,600.

NEVADA.

The entire republican ticket carried. The republicans claim the state by 1,100 majority.

VIRGINIA.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The latest advices at republican headquarters from Virginia give the state to Blaine by from 7,000 to 10,000.

CALIFORNIA.

Two hundred and eighty-six precincts and wards in forty-four counties give Blaine 26,620, Cleveland 21,820. The same places give Garfield 21,674, Hancock 18,178.

ILLINOIS.

Chicago gives Blaine 49,413, Cleveland 46,485, St. John 497, Butler 502.

CHICAGO, November 5.—Returns from forty-eight counties up to midnight show Blaine's majority over Cleveland to be 12,436. The net democratic gain is 10,935. There are still fifty-five counties to be heard from.

As the latest returns now stand Blaine is sure of 198 votes in the Electoral College while the Democrats are sure of only 167. This gives New Jersey Virginia and Connecticut to the Democrats and excludes New York altogether.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, November 5.—Official returns from seven counties in the State and careful estimates of the others indicate a plurality of 70,000 for Blaine.

CONNECTICUT.

CONN. Nov. 6.—Cleveland's plurality in this State is about 1,000. The election of the State officials will be thrown into the legislature, which is largely Republican.

ILLINOIS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Returns from 48 counties show Blaine's majority is 12,436 which is a Democratic gain of 1,050. There are 45 counties, including Cook, yet to be heard from.

VIRGINIA.

Richmond City gives Cleveland 7600 and Blaine 5820 votes.

NEW JERSEY.

TRENTON, N. J.,—Cleveland's estimated majority by counties in this State is 2115. This majority is liable to be greatly reduced when some lower counties are heard from. The Butler and St. John votes are small.

Republicans have a majority in both branches of the legislature.

WEST VIRGINIA.

WHEELING,—Republicans claim the state by a small majority.

CALIFORNIA.

Gives Blaine 7000 majority.

WISCONSIN.

Returns from more than half the State now assure the election of the Republican ticket by not less than 10,000.

MICHIGAN.

DETROIT, Nov. 6.—Up to 1 o'clock this afternoon all the returns received point to the election of the republican ticket by a small majority. From fragmentary reports from remote counties and returns elsewhere, a careful estimate has been made by the Free Press, democratic. This gives Blaine a total plurality of 17,480; fusion plurality, 15,535. Blaine over fusion, 1,945.

DETROIT, Nov. 6.—Michigan will give Blaine about 1,500. Latest figures indicate the election of six fusion democrats and five republican congressmen.

Excitement in Boston.

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—There is great excitement here, especially on Washington street, in the vicinity of the Herald and Journal offices. Papers were taken from the newsboys and burned and pictures of Blaine and Cleveland seized. The crowd was broken a large plate-glass window of the Journal office and rotten eggs and stones have been thrown at the building. Six arrests have been made. At democratic headquarters the democrats are burning red lights and discharging rockets.

Why Gould Did It.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—1:30 p. m.—Papers depending upon associated press still claim that Blaine has a plurality of little less than 1,000. A special to the Philadelphia Press from the New York Tribune says that Blaine has a plurality in New York of 1400 and that Gould was forced to send congratulatory dispatch to Cleveland to save his life. The DAILY NEWS concedes Cleveland's election.

The following dispatch was received at 7:22 o'clock on Thursday evening:

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 6.

Editor Republican:

Blaine surely carries New York by 2,000 and is as surely elected. It is dead safe. Good night.

THOS. V. COOPER.

The Republican Triumph.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The following address has just been issued:

HEADQUARTERS
REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE,
NEW YORK CITY.

The Republican National Committee rejoices that the returns now received warrant it in announcing the triumphant election of Blaine and Logan.

The Republicans have carried every northern state except New Jersey and Connecticut. Virginia seems also to have given a majority for the Republican cause on the ticket, and there is a strong probability that West Virginia has also, while other southern states are still in doubt.

The northern states alone, however, give to Blaine and Logan 233 electoral votes, and insure their election in New York. Attempts to tamper with returns have already been detected.

The actual vote cast in New York city and Kings county and 1,852 other election precincts gives at the utmost only 148 plurality to Grover Cleveland, while 163 precincts not yet heard from gave 2,171 plurality to Garfield.

There is, therefore, no doubt that the honest vote of the state has been given to the republican candidates, and though the defeated candidate for the presidendy is at the head of the election machinery in this state the Democratic party which has notoriously been the party of fraud in elections for years, will not be permitted to thwart the will of the people. The national Republican committee calls on the chairmen and individual members of all county committees to take the promptest and most stringent means to protect the sanctity of the ballot.

The Republican candidates have honestly been elected beyond question. Any attempt to cheat the people and to defeat their will, thus expressed at the polls, must be sternly exposed and resisted by every law-respecting citizen.

SAM'L FESSENDEN, Chairman.
Secretary.

A Terrific Storm.

FATHER POINT, Quebec, Nov. 5.—A fearful snow and wind-storm from the east has been raging since midnight last night all along the coast. The wind averages seventy miles an hour and the sea is tremendous and has crossed the highways and inundated the fields of the parishes along the coast. The light-house and telegraph offices here are now completely surrounded by raging waves. The roads are all undermined. The watch-house and several buildings here and in this vicinity and at Rimouski have been carried away, besides a number of fences. Great numbers of persons have vacated their buildings at Rimouski and much anxiety is felt regarding the tide of night The track of the Inter-Colonial Railway and the roadway have been washed away between Rimouski and Bic. No lives have been lost as far as known.

LATER—The signal and telegraph men have aabandoned the station, having been compelled to take boats. This is the greatest storm known in this vicinity for forty years.

RIVER DU LOUP EN BAS, Que., Nov. 5.—A snow-storm has prevailed here since last night, with a heavy wind from the northeast. The sea is sweeping over the wharf and has carried off a quantity of lumber. It has also swept away a store and the telegraph office and a house belonging to L. T. Puiza is not expected to stand another tide. The washout on the Inter Colonial Railway near Bic is one hundred feet long and twenty feet deep. Trains are unable to transfer to-night.

RIMOUSKI, Ont., Nov. 5.—The tides, which are usually very high at this season of the year, helped by a raging snow-storm and a high northeast wind have swollen tremendously, and the sea which is now running is the heaviest that has visited this vicinity for years. The whole town of Rimouski is inundated and a large number of houses, barns, stables and wharves have been carried away. So far as heard no lives have been lost. People are leaving their houses in boats. The cattle have been turned loose and have taken to the interior of the country. Further fears are entertained for the next high tide. The loss so far is estimated at $30,000.

Mrs. Garfield Swindled Out of $10

CLEVELAND, Nov. 5.—A confidence man has practised his art upon Mrs. Garfield, and defrauded her out of a check for $10. Yesterday he had called at the Garfield residence, and after a little delay was admitted as a Y. M. C. A. young man. He sought a contribution to the fund of that institution. Mrs. Garfield said she had intended doing something for the association, and might as well do it then as later. The young man continued to talk while she wrote the check, and when she bowed him out he was still talking. When he had gone suspicion took the place of confidence, and she telephoned to the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. She received the response that no one who could have called at that time had any authority to collect money for the association. She at once notified the bank to refuse to cash the check, but it was too late; it had been cashed.

Blaine not Sick.

AUGUSTA, Nov. 6.—The report that Blaine is or has been sick since his return to Augusta is untrue. While he was receiving congratulations in his library this morning he said, in answer to an inquiry about his health: "I never felt better in my life. I remained in my room most of the time yesterday because, after seven weeks' continuous public speaking, I was still quite hoarse, and I felt that I was entitled to one day's rest." The fact is he is in excellent health and spirits, and as this dispatch is written he is just getting ready to go out for a walk.

The President Votes.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—A large crowd surrounded the little cigar store at 402 Third avenue, which was the polling place for the Second election district of the Eighteenth Assembly district, this afternoon when President Arthur drove up in a closed carriage, accompanied by Surrogate Rollins, at half-past two o'clock. He stepped to the sidewalk and grasped the hand of Charles McGee, a Tammany distributor of ballots.

"How are you, Charley?" said the President.

The crowd cheered him like wild men. He requested McGee to lead him to a place where he could procure ballots. Charley attempted to do so, but the steadily increasing crowd gathered around them and swept them to the corner of Twenty-eighth street with a force that sent the little hut where the Republican ballots were stored rolling into the gutter. This did not cause any abatement in the enthusiasm, however. A cry was raised for "the man who ought to be our next President." Mr. Arthur took it very good-naturedly and lifted his hat.

The ballots were at length procured and he crushed his way to the polling place, holding an unlighted cigar firmly between his teeth. He voted the Republican ticket for all but Assembly, which he omitted. The crowd behind crushed him against the counter, while one enthusiastic individual cheered loudly in his ears for Chester A. Arthur. As the President turned to leave Emigration Commissioner Stephenson requested permission to shake hands with him. The President cordially complied, and then went away in his carriage with the Surrogate.

News of General Gordon.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—General Lord Wolseley, who is at Dongola, in reply to a message of inquiry from the government as to the condition of affairs at Khartoum says that Colonel Kitchener telegraphs that Arabs from the south report all quiet. One of our messengers who was sent to Khartoum some days ago reached that place and was received by General Gordon with a salute and parade of his troops. The British and French Consuls were with Colonel Stewart whose boat was reported wrecked several days ago at Wady Garna. It is supposed that M. Nicola remained behind and is therefore safe.

The Mahdi, with a strong force of rebel troops, had advanced upon Amderman, opposite Khartoum, and asked General Gordon to surrender. General Gordon replied that he would hold Khartoum against him for twelve years. The Mahdi then retired a day's journey south, declaring that he would not fight for two months. Many of his followers left him. The Governor of Kassala had promised to come to the assistance of General Gordon. Mohamed Elkheir held Berber for the Mahdi, but the people are afraid that General Gordon will attack that place.

The road from Berber to Khartoum is closed, except by the way of Metemeh, which latter place the rebels visit nightly. A Suakim dispatch states that the rebels attacked the railway there yesterday evening, but were successfully repulsed.

The Terms that France Submits.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—The papers submitted by the Tonquin Commission to the Cabinet contain dispatches that were interchanged between M. Ferry, Prime Minister of France, and the Secretary of State at Washington, regarding the mediation by the Government of the United States between France and China. The dispatches show that M. Ferry, in reply to a query from the American Secretary whether France would accept the mediation of the United States, said that the minimum condition of such mediation would be an unreserved acceptance by the Government of China of the treaty of Tien-Tsin and the payment of an indemnity to France, the amount of which could be fixed subsequently.

Ships Wrecked and Sailors Drowned.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Nov. 4.—In two recent gales of Saturday and the previous Thursday a terrible havoc was wrought in shipping on the New Foundland and Labrador coasts The British brig Dugong was lost, with all hands, at Western Head. The schooners Topsy and Juba have been totally wrecked, the crews barely escaping with their lives. Eleven other vessels have been lost, but no particulars of the disaster have yet been received. At Torbay an unknown vessel was lost, with all hands. The wreck is in pieces, most of it being driven ashore.

The Murder of Lizzie Wilson.

ROANOKE, Va., Nov. 5.—There is no clue to the murderer of Lizzie Wilson, who was killed here last evening. Two negroes have been arrested, but their guilt is considered doubtful. The Mayor has offered a reward of $350 for the capture of the murderer, and fifty extra police are searching the surroun ling country. A citizens' meeting this afternoon offered an additional reward of $1,000.

Judge Kelley's Daughter Married Abroad.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—It is announced that on the 17th of last month Florence, the daughter of the Hon. William D. Kelly, of this city, was married at Zurich, Switzerland, to Lazare Wischenwetzky, a young Russian physician. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walter H. Bion, and was the outgrowth of an attachment formed more than a year ago.

"But you said Mrs. S. nearly took the roof off when you got home after midnight."

"Yes, but there is no danger this evening."

Close Financiering.

"What is the wooden box for, sir?" asked the new stockholder of the president of the just organized bank.

"That? Oh, that's for the securities and money, you know. We must have some place to keep them," replied the practical president.

"Why certainly; I know that," replied the astonished stockholder, "but ain't you going to have a safe?"

"No, there is no use going into foolish expenses," placidly replied the president.

"What, no safe?"

"Why, no. When the cashiers go to Canada they always take the combination with them, and you cannot realize anything on a second-hand safe with a busted lock."

Young Jarphley's Scheme No Good.

"Pah," said young Jarphley, "I've got a scheme."

"Ah, wot is it, my son?" cautiously asked his father.

"To raise money—lots of it!" enthusiastically responded the Jarphley's heir.

"How?"

"Why, you get on a horsecar and fall off and break your leg, and man and I'll sue the company."

"It won't work, Johnnie," snappishly replied Mrs. Jarphley. "We couldn't prove that it disabled him from following his usual occupation of lying around."

CATARRH.—Without assuming to write out a thesis of this universal ailment, facts warrant our saying that it seems to us that there never was a season when it was so prevalent as the present.

The above is preliminary to the following, viz.: That Messrs. Hood & Co., of Lowell, believe that the best way to treat Catarrh, and the only way to get permanent relief is through the blood. A constitutional disease requires a constitutional remedy. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a blood purifier and constitutional medicine can be relied upon, and has cured numerous cases of Catarrh in its various forms. We think this claim a reasonable one and gladly give it room in our columns.

Scottish lasses are it appears, to have the benefit of more general and systematic instruction in cookery. There are now thirty-six schools in Scotland, in which cookery is taught, which number are about to be largely increased.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching; very distressing, particularly at night; seems as if pinworms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also, for tetter, Itch, salt rheum, scald-head, erysipelas, barbers' itch, blotches, all scaly, crusty skin diseases. Box, by mail, 50 cts.; 3 for $1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. Sold by druggists. may6 1y

When a young man courts and marries a nice, mild-speaking and modest girl, who after marriage, turns out to be a cross and ugly tempered wife, it's something like fishing for bass and catching a toad-fish.

D. W. Prosser, Jamestown, N. Y., writes: "I have been subject to nervous headache for years; used different remedies, but they did me no good. A friend urged me to try Joseph's Oil. I procured a bottle, used it several times and found relief; the second bottle cured me entirely. Sold by John Harris.

It is considered humiliating for a Mexican gentleman to be caught on the street with a bundle in his hand, says a correspondent. A real gentleman always lets his wife carry the bundles in the streets.

Remarked R. C. Joiner, of Allen P. O., Hilldale Co., Mich.: "Nothing gave my rheumatism such quick relief as Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil.—believe it infallible for rheumatism.

—Heavy overcoats are now in demand.

—Less than two months of leap year yet remain.

—The cider drinking days are here in all their glory.

—The turkey crop for Thanksgiving Day is said to be large.

—"Glory, glory hallelujah, as Blaine goes marching on."

—On Wednesday night snow fell in the vicinity of Johnstown to a depth of fully four inches.

—"Ma, ma, where's my pa?"—Little Grover Folsam. "Buried beneath a pile of votes, my son."—Maria.

—The Philipsburg Ledger says that a new Roller rink is to be built in that place. It is to be 130x60 feet.

—It is understood that several Democratic post-office aspirants have already applied to Cleveland for the position.

—Of course, Mr. Bartrim Galbraith will consent to ring the Court House bell when the Blaine demonstration takes place.

—The death of Mrs. Amos Alexander of Millheim, occurred on Thursday evening, October 30. Her decease is much regretted.

—A St. Louis jeweler has invented garters with bells on them. In Bellefonte we reverse matters and have belles with garters on them.

—The report comes of a Lock Haven girl's foot being caught in a railroad frog. They must have extra large railroad frogs down there.

—The Democrat authorities have failed to telegraph to Bellefonte that Pennsylvania has voted for Cleveland. This is a duty which should not be overlooked.

—The sixth reunion of the Veteran Society, 49th Pennsylvania Volunteers, will be held in Lewistown, on Wednesday and Thursday, November 19 and 20.

—We understand that a lad named John Johnston, who is employed at the Nail Works, fell while skating at the roller rink on Tuesday evening, the 4th, breaking one of his arms.

—The Tyrone correspondent of the Altoona Tribune says: "Miss Jennie Pechtel, an estimable young lady of Philipsburg, has gone to Philadelphia under the care of Dr. Patton, of the same place, to be treated for melancholia."

—Well, the official count of the vote in Centre county shows that Leonard Rhone has been elected to the legislature by a majority of 31 and John A. Woodward by a majority of 130. This, of course, entitles these gentlemen to go to Harrisburg to represent this county.

—The Y. M. C. A. week of prayer began last Sunday, and is now being observed by the Association in this place. The first service was held on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and there will be a service every evening this week, except Saturday, between 8:30 and 9 o'clock. They will be only for young men, and as the hour will suit those who clerk in stores it is hoped and believed that the attendance will be large.

—The Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company last week declared a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent. cash. This is the first time in two years that the company has declared a dividend purely in cash, there having been stock allotments of privileges coupled with the dividends issued, beginning with November, 1882. The present amount of stock of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, on which this dividend will be paid, is $94,777,850. An officer of the company stated the other day that the declaration of this dividend in cash could be taken as evidence that hereafter the dividends of the company would be in cash and at the rate of 6 per cent.

—We have stringent laws against carrying concealed weapons, as well as they have in other States, but it seems that the crime is increasing, particularly among boys of from twelve to twenty years of age. The boy who carries a pistol knows no better, and is likely to be a confirmed coward. Chicago recently had a case in point. A riot broke out at 10 o'clock at night among a gang of about twenty or more boys. A score of shots were fired and accidently no one was killed, but eight were more or less wounded. The police arrested twenty-seven of the rioters and twenty-two of them had pistols in their pockets. None of the criminals were over eighteen years of age. Parents, think of this—the hour of the night—the fact that half the number or more might have been killed. What civilization!

The Lucky Horseshoe.

Now that the horseshoe, as a pretty symbol of good luck, forms so much a part of household decoration, it may not be amiss to say a word about its significance in the olden times. The horseshoe was anciently believed to be an effectual protection against witchcraft and witches, who could no more overcome the sanctity of this semi circular form than they could the movement of a stream which even the most powerful could not cross, if in the shape of a running brook, as witness the race of Tom O'Shanter, who, pursued by them, passed the keystone of the bridge himselft, while the tail of his good mare, on the wrong side thereof, became the prey of the pursuing warlocks.

We have seen the horseshoe nailed to the lintel of barns and masts of vessels, for a witch, mounted on her broomstick, might take it into her head to descend upon some unlucky craft, or she might call up the surging waves to engulf it, unless it were protected by this holy symbol. For a horse to cast a shoe was a bad omen when a gallant knight was about to start upon some expedition; hence if a horse stumbled, which he would be sure to do if he was imperfectly shod, was unlucky. We do not in our day believe much in witches or "bad signs," but everybody is pleased with the good luck implied in the finding of a horseshoe.—Altoona Tribune.

—The next commissioners of this county are Messrs. J. C. Henderson, A. J. Greist and John Wolf. The first-mentioned, Mr. Henderson, was elected by a handsome and highly complimentary vote. He is a gentleman of strong, resolute character and will take a very important and doubtless a leading part in all the proceedings of the board of commissioners. It seems impossible for the Centre county Republicans to elect more than one of their candidates for commissioner and, therefore, in view of the strong personal popularity of Mr Henderson, he was chosen in preference to another very popular gentleman, Mr. H. C. Campbell, who is the retiring member of the board. In leaving the office to which Mr. Campbell was called, as the result of a spirited contest, he has the consciousness of having performed his duty in every particular. He may not have pleased all men with whom he had business transactions, but that is a thing only the official sycophant can hope to do. Mr. Campbell is severely conscientious and upright, and can retire to private life with the respect of all. There is one fact of which our readers can rest assured. Whenever a popular gentleman is needed to lead the party in Centre county to victory that man can be found in Henry C. Campbell.

—For burns and scalds there is nothing more soothing than the white of an egg, which may be poured over the wound. It is softer as a varnish for a burn than collodion, and being always on hand can be applied immediately. It is also more cooling than the "sweet oil and cotton" which was formerly supposed to be the surest application to allay the smarting pain. It is the contact with the air which gives the extreme discomfort experienced from ordinary accidents of this kind, and anything which excludes air and prevents inflammation is the best thing to be applied at once. The egg is also considered one of the very best remedies for dysentery. Beaten up lightly, with or without sugar, and swallowed at a gulp, it tends by its emollient qualities to lessen the inflammation of the stomach and intestines, and by forming a transient coating on these organs to enable nature to assume her healthful sway over the diseased body.

—There are so many more ways now open for women to make a living than formerly, remarks an exchange, that she need not hunt up a man to take care of her, and maybe find out to her sorrow, when too late, that he can not take care of himself, much less a wife and family. If girls would only try to be helpful in the house during their school years, and learn all their mothers can teach them about housework before they think of marrying, we should have more happy homes and fewer divorce cases. Much of the domestic trouble we see about us is caused by mismanagement in the house. A wife should be as competent to conduct her household affairs as the husband is to do his business.

Methodism.

The following item of interest to Centre county readers is from the recent issue of the Conference News:

SNOW SHOE CIRCUIT.—Rev. W. F. D. Noble has built a neat inexpensive chapel at Moshannon, on this charge, which was dedicated Sabbath, October 19, by Rev. J. B. Shaver. A new and rapidly rising town twelve miles distant from Snow Shoe, called Peale, is supplied with preaching by Bro. Noble.

A Leaf Album.

A leaf album is among the newest fancies. To make one only requires the exercise of little care and patience. First get a slab of plate glass and spread upon it a daub of printer's ink; then get a small roller such as printer's use, and roll it over the ink till the glass is equally covered; then lay the leaf—clean and freshly gathered—on the inked glass, and carefully draw the roller over it. Next lift the leaf by the stalk—using considerable tenderness because of the fragility of the subject—and place it between a folded sheet of paper, press and rub gently all over it, being careful not to let it alter its position. Then take the leaf out, and you should have a beautiful, clean impression of both the front and back. The same effect might be got, to a certain extent, with lampblack, oil color or anything of that kind, but when it is done with printing ink it is not only far more clear and distinct but permanent. A bit of common plate glass, or a bit of marble, or even a china pallette will suffice to put the ink upon—anything, in fact, so long as it presents a smooth surface and is non-metalic and non-absorbent.

The Secret of Happiness.

What we term happiness is the outgrowth of regularity and uniformity of life. Those who rush recklessly into pleasure soon find that it palls on the taste and becomes insipid and valueless in a little while. But those who regulate their pleasures by reason are benefited in mind and health. Here is why the moods that control so many should be governed. They inspire to extremes. If they lead to pleasure it is ever toward excess; and if to gloom it is always of the blackest sort. In all directions it is the unbalanced influence of imagination that we call moods. Life is better, as a rule, without them, because it calls for regularity and order. The impulsive do not relish the sedateness they associate with the idea of regularity; but the success of life rarely comes from mere impulse. The strong men were those who have had their powers at command, and who could use them at will.

The Railroad Excursion.

The first grand excursion from Spring Mills to Oak Hall, which took place on Monday, November 3, was a very successful affair. Among the distinguished gentlemen who were present were Hon. L. A. Mackey, Col. Slifer, Judge Bucher, Col. Coburn, ex-Gov. Curtin, Edmund Blanchard, ex-Judge Hoy and Judge Furst. The excursionists brought lunch with them, and the railroad officials, together with a few intimate friends, were banqueted at the home of Mr. Samuel Gilliland. At an informal meeting which was held after dinner several congratulatory speeches were made, Hon. L. A. Mackey, Judge Bucher and Col. Coburn making the principal addresses. The entire demonstration is conceded by all to have been a very happy one and the completion of the railroad thus far is a subject of great rejoicing throughout the entire valley.

The Wedding on Thursday Evening.

A company of about 60 persons from Bellefonte, Williamsport and other places assembled at Judge Orvis' very handsome residence on Thursday evening to witness the wedding ceremony which united Mr. Albert E. Canfield, of Williamsport, and Miss Jennie, the accomplished daughter of ex-Judge John H. Orvis, of this place. Rev. J. F. Delong, of the Reformed church, officiated. The occasion was a very happy one. The contracting parties are favorites in Bellefonte social circles and they have the congratulations and best wishes of scores of friends and admirers.

Meetings during week at 8:30 p. m.

—The annual inspection of the Pennsylvania railroad began on Thursday. The party of inspectors includes the head officials from Philadelphia, the general superintendent, the superintendents of divisions, the supervisors and a host of lesser attachés. The inspection this year will be much more thorough and rigorous than ever before. All the branches will be examined the same as the main line. About ten days will be required to complete the work.

Brains for the Kitchen.

The happiness of home life and worldly success are dependent in a large measure on what comes from the kitchen to the table to be eaten. Mental poise hinges on the physical condition, and a man's stomach can play the dickens with him, not to say anything of his liver. The subject of preparation of food and the creation of appetizing dishes is one which the housewife should deem beneath her consideration. It is quite possible to be well informed, cultivated and accomplished, and also to give time to the requirements of the table to furnish it in such a manner that the most fastidious shall be satisfied and danger of dyspepsia and indigestion be averted. Almost universally the women of brains and judgment cook better than those of untrained mental capacities.

—Mr. C. E. Fuller, Superintendent of Mr. John DuBois' farm at DuBois, has furnished an exchange the products of that establishment for the current year, as follows: 400 tons of hay, 761 bushels of wheat, (five acres producing 244 bushels) 3,000 bushels of oats, 300 bushels of rye, 651 bushels of buckwheat from one and one-half acres, 2,000 bushels of excellent potatoes. There is the following live stock: 200 head of sheep, 130 head of hogs, 11 draft and Hambletonian colts, 65 milch cows, 61 horses, 9 mules and 14 yokes of oxen are kept for lumbering purposes and farm work. Prof. Donaldson, of dynamite fame, has stumped about seventy-five acres within the past sixty days. One hundred acres of fall wheat have been sowed.

The Way the News Comes.

A peculiarity of the past few days in Bellefonte is that the Democrats have received four-fifths of the news Every ten minutes, a dispatch would come to some prominent Democrat announcing something favorable for Cleveland and that "same old Rebel yell" could be heard. But, to off-set this, about twice each day a very favorable dispatch would come to the Republicans and the latter party would be correspondingly elevated. The Democratic telegrams came so frequently that all confidence in their reliability seemed to be dissipated.

—The name of Mr. H. G. Royer, of Wolf's Store, has become a household word to the people of this county during the past three months. Although he was not elected to the office of Sheriff, of which he was the Republican candidate, he feels happy over the result as he made a most valiant fight, and ran ahead of his ticket all along the line. As the nomination of a Democrat almost inevitably insures his election, Mr. Royer richly merits the congratulation of his Republican fellow-citizens at the result.

Death of Mr. Thomas Burnside.

Mrs. Harry Valentine received the information, Friday morning, of the death of her father, Mr. Thos. Burnside, who resides in Missouri. The sad event occurred on Thursday morning, after a very short illness. Mr. B. was held in the highest esteem in this community where he was born and where he spent most of his life. We sympathise with his numerous friends and relatives who will be greatly shocked by the sad news.

LEARNING AND YEARNING.

No longer does the boy

Nor seeks the maiden coy
The golden rod so sprim.

He to his sorrow learns
The way to school and back;
She simply sits and yearns
For that lovely sealskin sacque.

—Our very popular Democratic legal friend, Aaron Williams, Esq., departed on Thursday for Indiana, where he was married on Monday last to Miss Fisher, the charming niece of Mrs. Harry Teats. Miss F. resided with her aunt in this place for about two years and is very popular. Their wedding tour will be quite extensive, including Colorado and other points in the West and will conclude after December 1st with a visit to the World's Exposition at New Orleans. They will then return to Bellefonte.

—Quite suddenly, on Sunday, the death of Mrs. Frank Keller occurred in Washington, D. C. The deceased was the daughter of Prof. Collier, at one time an instructor in the State College and now a resident of Indiana. Her name was Miss Cora Collier and she is well remembered by many of residents of this county. Col. D. S. Keller and Mrs. Dr. Rhone, brother and sister respectively of Mr. Frank Keller, the bereaved young husband, departed on the 8.45 train Monday evening to attend the funeral. We deeply sympathize with all mourning relatives.

DEDICATED.

An Epoch in the History of the Bellefonte Presbyterian Sunday School.

Clear skies, bright sunshine, all nature wreathed in smiles were the characteristics of Sunday. Beginning about 1 o'clock and continuing until 2 o'clock, groups of happy, prosperous-looking people wended their way from all parts of town toward the new stone building on Spring street which is to be used by the Presbyterians for Sunday-school purposes. Before two o'clock the spacious building was filled and late arrivals searched in vain for a seat.

When the audience were seated and had time to glance around the beautiful apartment murmurs of pleasure and surprise were heard. For the purpose, the enclosure was all thrown into one. The doors of the ornamental partition walls were elevated and it seemed to be one vast apartment. The first effect is exceedingly pleasing and as detail upon detail is revealed to view the satisfaction increases rather than diminishes.

Five hundred people can be accommodated in the lower apartment and there are deep, spacious galleries on both the west and south sides, these being well filled on the occasion of the dedication. On every side are beautiful stained glass windows, through which the tinted lights blend with delightful, subdued coloring. On the east side of the room, looking toward Spring street, is a fine memorial window. The scene presented is that of Moses viewing the Promised Land. Standing on the jutting cliff of the holy mountain, he looks with pleasure into the fair vista beyond. The river of life opens up to view, the sun of righteousness floods the perspective with his bright beams, a sacred beauty hovers over all. The scene is captivating in its loveliness. The coloring is quite effective, and the genius of an artist is discernible in the position and pose of the central figure as well as all its environments. Inscribed below are the words:

"In Memoriam;
Rev. James Linn, D. D.,
58 years pastor of this church."

The furnishings of the room, the neat carpet, the pulpit desk and upholstered chairs and sofa, the steam heat radiators, gas fixtures and all other appointments are carefully selected, superior in quality and beautifully harmonious. When the dividing partitions are in position the space below is separated into an assembly room, parlor, kitchen, class rooms, etc. The building is intended as the social home of the church, where the prayer meetings, sociables, and other similar religious gatherings will be held.

The gentlemen who occupied seats in the pulpit on Sunday afternoon were Rev. Dr. Yeomans, of Orange, N. J.; Rev. Milton K. Foster, of the M. E. church; Rev. S. E. Furst, of the Lutheran church, and Gen. James A. Beaver. The latter is the superintendent of the Sunday-school and presided as master of ceremonies. After an opening musical invocation and the choir, which was seated in the gallery, had rendered the anthem, "Long May these Walls Resound," in very effective style, Rev. S. E. Furst read a selection of Scripture and Rev. M. K. Foster offered the opening prayer.

An appropriate selection from Moody and Sankey's 1, 2, 3, and 4 combined edition was sung by the congregation and Gen. Beaver introduced ex-Judge Samuel Linn, of Williamsport. Judge Linn filled a most interesting position in this service. During part of his reverend father's pastorate of the church, "Samuel" was the superintendent of the Sunday-school, and hence to him was assigned the part of ancient history. His remarks were confined to the relation of reminiscences of the early history of the Sunday-school and church; its primitive simplicity of worship; its severely orthodox faith and the sound instruction given to the children of the Sabbath-school. He exhibited a New England Primer, which was one of the early Sunday-school text books, and recalled to mind some of the forms of instruction which it contained. The alphabetical couplets are still familiar to modern readers and he asked where in the latter-day Sunday-school book can more orthodox and condensed instruction be found than in the couplet

"In Adam's fall
We sinned all?"

And in the effort to find a rhythmical sentence for Z the early-day instructors composed this:

"Zacheus, he climbed a tree
His Lord and Master for to see."

His remarks concerning the communion seasons of that date were not the least important of his recollections. Four days were devoted to each of those communion seasons. The pastor of the church always had a ministerial brother to assist him. A sermon was delivered on Friday and one on Saturday. "Tokens" were given out to those who were worthy to receive communion and refused all those who were deemed unworthy. Without one of these "tokens" none could receive the sacred elements. On Monday another sermon was preached. He said that he knew nothing of the present conduct and instruction of the Sunday-school, but he hoped that amid these beautiful and advantageous exterior surroundings, the careful and thorough training of the children was not neglected.

Rev. Dr. Yeomans was the next speaker. To him was assigned the part of mediæval history. He had humorously termed it the "dark ages," although he desired it to be understood that this latter term did not apply to his personal experience as the officiating minister during the days when Rev. Dr. Linn was still pastor, though superannuated from active work. He paid a warm ascription to the memory of that reverend gentleman. Said that his association with him was ever of the most precious and endearing kind, and that he could wish for no higher ambition of life than to fill in the minds of some congregation in the future the place which the memory of Rev. Linn occupies in the Bellefonte church; to have such a perpetuation of his memory as is contained in the memorial window. His pastorate in Bellefonte was one of the brightest of his life and he departed reluctantly to complete his brother's unfinished work in another place. He said that many of the faces before him were unfamiliar because they were of those who were children when he was among them and now matured into manhood and womanhood. Then he alluded to the impetus given to church architecture in Bellefonte, which he pleased to date from the time the first pick was struck for the foundation of the Presbyterian church building. There was the Episcopal church building, the beautiful edifice erected by the Reformed church, the M. E church building overtowering the Presbyterian parsonage. This had also extended into other edifices and showed its result in the numerous elegant public and private buildings. Will it not continue at least until Academy Hill is surmounted by a magnificent structure worthy the cause of education? Let it bear the name of the gentleman who will endow it with his munificent liberality. Reynolds Academy or any other such title will be exceedingly appropriate. His address was a well prepared and scholarly effort.

Quite effectively, Rev. Wm. Laurie dwelt on the time of modern civilization, though his fondness for early recollection was shown in the relation of some of the sacrifices made by pastor and people in their worship of earlier days. The way he learned the Shorter Catechism was certainly well calculated to drill that excellent compendium of divine truth deep in his memory, though when he attempted to give an illustration of it he found himself slightly "off the track." He referred feelingly to the favorable auspices, with which both church and Sunday school are now favored and hoped that the work to be done would be more devoted and self-sacrificing than ever before.

Rev. M. K. Foster was the next speaker and his address was one of the most happy of the occasion. To the Methodist minister is not given the privilege of filling such an enviable position as that of Rev. Mr. Linn. He can live only a few days in a place and then go on his way. But perhaps that is as well. He congratulated the congregation on their completion of this great work. He, of course, would be pleased if the Methodist church had a yet finer building for their own Sunday-school and perhaps that will be some day. Rev. S. E. Furst, of the Lutheran church, concluded the addresses with congratulatory remarks. He described what sort of an ideal combined church and Sunday-school edifice his church will build in its coming days of material affluence. His remarks formed a very fitting and appropriate conclusion to the congratulations of the day. The addresses were interspersed with appropriate musical selections and Mr. Furst's speech was followed by the rendition of a sentence by the choir which was of a joyful and triumphal character. Rev. Wm. Laurie made the dedicatory prayer and Rev. R. Crittenden pronounced the benediction, which ended the services at exactly 4:05 o'clock. Then the congregation dispersed or wandered at will through the various apartments of the building admiring it in every detail.

—The W. C. T. U. organizations in various parts of the State are contributing money to Harry Foster, the brave checkman who was so terribly maimed for life while attempting to save Miss Lizzie Wallace, the delegate to the late State Convention of that organization in Harrisburg.

A Profitable Religious Gathering at Rebersburg.

The Northeran Conference of the Central Synod of Penna., has just closed a most delightful and harmonious session at Rebersburg, Centre Co., Pa., Rev. F. Aurand, pastor. Through the absence of the President, Rev. W. E. Fischer, on a special call to Gettysburg, Rev. S. E. Furst preached the opening sermon from Job 5:14, to an interested audience. At 9 a. m. on Wednesday, the 5th, conference met for business and after spending some time in devotional meeting organized and elected officers for the ensuing year, as follows: S. E. Furst, President; G. W. Crist, Secretary, and F. Aurand, Treasurer. The 11th and 12th articles of the Augsburg Confession were discussed during the meeting. The former was opened with an essay by M. L. Furst, and the latter with an address by Rev. A. C. Felker. The local membership manifested a deep interest in these discussions, thus showing that the people of these valleys have an abiding confidence in the doctrines confessed by Luther and his co-laborers. The theme, "The Sunday School in its Relation to the Church," was also considered, several lay delegates taking part in the discussion. On Thursday afternoon we had a most solemn communion service, in which the local church also took part. Rev. J. K. Miller preached the communion sermon from Gen. 4:7.

Aside from these exercises and a sermon on Education on Wednesday evening, our most important business was care for vacant pastorates. Seven different charges, having 14 congregations, are still vacant. Committees were appointed to take charge of these pastorates during their vacancy and assist them in calling a pastor, and perform such pastoral duties as are essentially beneficial. The committees are as follows: Lock Haven, W. H. Diven; Zion and Warriors Mark, S. E. Furst; Mifflinburg, A. C. Felker; Ray's Church, S. G. Finckel; Aaronsburg, F. Aurand; Boalsburg, J. A. Koser. Beside these there was a general committee appointed to take charge of vacancies occasioned during the interim of Conference. This was our first visit to Brush Valley, and the calm quiet of surrounding nature with its rich autumnal dress, the interest of the people in church work, and the meetings of conference and the hospitality extended, the intelligence manifested, gave us favorable impressions of both place and people, and cause us to look forward to the meetings of Synod in this same place next September with much pleasure.

The work of conference throughout was harmonious, the meetings profitable, the preaching was well received, the communion in the midst of the rainy season was well attended, and the children's meeting a grand success. Altogether this meeting was one of the most pleasant which it has been the writer's privilege of attending since in this Conference.

GEO. W. CRIST, Sec.

—The remains of the late Thomas Burnside were received in Bellefonte on Monday morning at 9:45 o'clock and a very large congregation assembled in the Episcopal church at two o'clock in the afternoon to attend the funeral ceremonies. The service for the burial of the dead was most impressively repeated, the music was sweetly rendered and the officiating clergyman, Rev. John Hewitt, made one of the most impressive and beautiful addresses respecting the eminent merits and distinctive characteristics of deceased that have ever been listened to in Bellefonte on such an occasion. So extremely tender and affectionate were his remarks, that not only the immediate relatives, but also almost the entire congregation were affected to tears. Hearts were moved as they have not been before for many years. The casket was conveyed from the church to the hearse by six pall bearers selected from the most prominent citizens of the town. On it were several floral wreaths and bouquets. The chief mourner was Mrs. Burnside, widow of the deceased, who bowed with grief, leaned upon the arm of her son William; then Mr. and Mrs. Harry Valentine, the latter a bride of only a few weeks, thus so soon plunged in deep sorrow. All the circumstances combined to render the occasion one of unusual affliction. The deceased was, about all of his life, an honored citizen of this place. At the time of his death he was filling a responsible position in the service of the National Government in Missouri.

—C. R. Gearhart, the Lock Haven insurance agent, met with an accident on Monday morning. While watching the process of fitting the steam heating pipes, reports the Express, the earth gave way and he was precipitated into the ditch, dislocating his left arm at the elbow and cutting several gashes in his head.

A Beautiful Original Poem.

We have read the following poem with great pleasure. It is beautiful and appropriate in sentiment and more than ordinarily fine in measure and versification. The author is endowed with much poetic fire and genius and his poem is peculiarly apropos at the present time when Pennsylvania has distinguished herself among the States by giving the astonishing plurality of 77,000 for Blaine and Logan.

PENNSYLVANIA.

In our beauteous sisterhood of States fair Pennsylvania leads
In sturdy men, and women true, and record of brave deeds,
When foes have menaced the sacred rights of man
'Gainst those foes her sons she marshalled and they always led the van.

From the hour when Penn, the Quaker, hewed the Keystone of the arch,
She has born upon her banner that proud motto—Forward March!
And her progress has been onward as resistless and as free
As the rushing of her waters from the mountains to the sea.

On her soil the note was sounded that this land no more should be
Ruled and ravaged by a tyrant—by a master o'er the sea,
And from out her border sallied on a stormy winter night
The immortal band of heroes who crushed that tyrant's might.

Her history is written in letters all aflame
With deeds that glorify the right and put the wrong to shame.
She has fairly won in council sage and on the battle field,
Her title to the foremost rank—inscribe it on her shield.

Do you seek the source from which her fame her honor springs?
You will find it in the Scottish Kirk that bred a race of kings,
The title to the crowns they wore bears the stamp of Heaven's decree
And runs: Eternal hate of tyrants and love of liberty.

You will find it in the Huguenot, best type of Gallic race
Who hither fled from fire and sword, and found a resting place
From bigot's chain, and despot's sway, and the proud oppressor's rod
Then "left unstained what here he found, freedom to worship God."

Behold it in the unwavering faith in the "inner light divine"
That led the followers of Fox to freedom's holy shrine.
That faith born of the love of God, inspired true love for men,
And stamped itself for aye upon the heritage of Penn.

Pleasant Gap, Pa. R. W. ALEXANDER.

Williams-Fisher.

We copy the following from the Richmond, Ind., Sunday Register: "To-morrow morning at half-past ten at the bride's residence on North 11th street, the nuptials of Mr. Aaron Williams, of Bellefonte, Pa., and Miss Jennie B. Fisher, of this city, will be solemnized, Rev. Burch officiating. At the conclusion of the ceremony the bridal couple will start for Chicago, where, after a short visit to friends, they will go to Fort Collins, Colorado. Here they will visit several weeks, returning to Bellefonte, their future home. Miss Fisher is one of Richmond's best young ladies, and in securing her Mr. Williams has gained a prize, of which he may well feel proud. The Register extends congratulations in advance and hopes their trip may not meet with accidents or trouble. In their journey through life may their pathway ever be strewn with roses."

Mr. Aaron Williams, the principal in this important affair, is a gentleman in the prime of life, enjoying great popularity among all classes of people and was several years ago elected prothonotary of the county, serving the people very faithfully. He is independently wealthy and enjoys that independence in a way that few persons similarly situated seem disposed to do. He is a prize as a life-companion and it is a rare pleasure to know that he has secured one who is in every way worthy of him in Miss Jennie Fisher. She is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Teats, of this place, and during her two years' residence in Bellefonte her company was universally sought. She is well equipped in every accomplishment which women can employ in the pursuit of their various duties. Fitted in every way to occupy the new and endearing relation which the happy couple has just assumed, we cannot but tender them the congratulation of the NEWS. The time for their return home is extremely uncertain and may not be until next year. Their wedding tour is an ideal one, not limited by time, as "time," it is said, "was made for slaves and not for free men."

—It is explained that the year 1900 will not be a leap year, although it is divisible by 4 without a remainder. In order to make calendar and solar time agree as nearly as they can be got for many centuries to come, the Gregorian calendar drops three leap years out of every four centuries, and these omissions are upon such leap years as will not divide by 400 without a remainder—although they can be divided evenly by 4. The year 1600 was a leap year, but 1700 and 1800 were not, and 1900 will not be.

Railroad Opened to Philipsburg.

The Philadelphia Press, on Monday, contained the following special correspondence:

PHILIPSBURG, Nov. 9.—The Beech Creek, Clearfield and Southwestern Railroad will be opened to Philipsburg, Centre county, in about ten days. The viaduct across the Moshannon Creek, 830 feet long and 116 feet high, has just been finished. It is a wonder. This railroad has been pushed with great vigor, and the graduation and masonry are about completed for thirty miles beyond Philipsburg. Before Spring, trains will be running into the town of Clearfield and up Clearfield Creek to Ansonville, the heart of the Clearfield Creek coal fields. The distance from Philipsburg to Jersey Shore, where connection is made with the Reading Railroad, is about seventy miles. Passenger and freight trains are to be put on immediately, connecting at Williamsport with the Reading Railroad for Philadelphia and New York. The twin corporation is the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Company. It ships its coal from the mines near Peale by this railroad, and it is understood that the same parties are interested in each enterprise. This company has been shipping coal since July last at the rate of about 30,000 tons per month, but the completion of the bridge across the Moshannon will enable the company now to reach its large body of coal about Peale, in Clearfield county, and to largely increase its output. Heretofore, it has been obliged, in order to meet its demands, to buy considerable coal daily. Two years ago this region was a wilderness. To-day it is traversed by a first-class railroad, and a mining town of over 2,000 inhabitants has been built. The quality of the coal at Peale is entirely satisfactory to the customers of the company.

—We cannot vouch for the value of the following, but if it is tried and proves successful, the credit can be given to the Tyrone correspondent of the Altoona Tribune, who says: "As the time of year has come for putting away apples for the winter, and wishing every one success in keeping their fruit firm and free from rot, we hereby pen for the benefit of those who are willing to test it the plan adopted by the writer and which has given in every instance, the most satisfactory results: Take leaves, perfectly dry, and place a layer in the bottom of a barrel, then carefully place a layer of apples thereon, cover these with a layer of leaves upon which put another layer of apples and so continue alternately till the barrel is full, the last layer being leaves, and in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the fruit will be taken out in the spring with all the firmness which it possessed when placed there and fifty per cent. of delicious flavor thrown in. We have kept two different varieties in this way till the 4th of July."

Personal Pencilings.

—Centre Hall's express agent is Mr. C. Dinges.

Simon Hazel, of Madisonburg, is on the sick list.

Miss Caroline Gobble, of Millheim, is dangerously ill.

Mr. John Stover is now clerking in Mr. C. P. Long's store, at Lemont.

Dr. George F. Harris and wife, Bellefonte, registered at the Park Hotel, Williamsport, on Friday.

Mr. Bell, who is the principal manager of Mr. Mann's office at the axe works, is recovering from a prostrating illness.

Rev. Mr. Hewitt, rector of the P. E. church, of this place, will return home to-day, and will officiate as usual in that church on Sunday.

Mr. J. Cooper Dare departed on Monday for Northumberland, Pa., where he has accepted a clerkship with Edgar Holt & Co., of that place.

—Mr. James Potter, of this place, narrowly escaped death a few days ago by being thrown from the wagon in which he was riding and dragged beneath the vehicle all the way from Valentines' Ironworks to town. He hung on to the wagon and was afraid to disengage himself from it lest the tail gate would strike him on the head and perhaps kill him. By a happy thought, he wound the reins around one of the front wheels which stopped the progress of the horse. He was much bruised, but is now about as usual.
